The following is found on page 23 in Arthur Coon Ives' book "Genealogy of the Ives Family" 1932:

Two years after the date of this assignment the families of Ives and Bassett were detined to assume a closer relationship. William Ives and "Sister Bassett" both died within ten years after the founding of Quinnipiac, and Hannah Ives became the second wife of Dr. William Bassett, Nov 7, 1648. Dr. Bassett's name disappears from the church record in 1684; Hannah's 'after 1662'

At 35 years of age William became the father of Phebe Ives in New Haven, New Haven, Connecticut, 1642. At 37 years of age William became the father of John Ives in New Haven, New Haven, Connecticut, 1644. William became the father of Martha Ives in New Haven, New Haven, Connecicut, about 1646. William became the father of Joseph Ives in New Haven, New Haven, Connecticut, about 1648. While I have seen parents listed for William Ives, I haven't seen any proof of them. Because of lack of proof, I will not include them on these pages.

Captain William Ives (1) is the starting point for this genealogy series. I think the best guess is that William was born in 1607 in Norfolk, England. Some genealogy sites list him as born in 1621. Here is another list that agrees with the 1607 birth date. If the 1621 birth was the case he would have come to Boston on the Truelove in 1635 (documented fact) at age 14 by himself and then gone to be a co-founder and property holder in New Haven at age 17. Not impossible but less likely. Also, there was a William Ives listed as a member of the same London parish, St. Stephens of Coleman Street, as John Davenport, the first minister in New Haven prior to this trip (Caulder, 1936). That Willliam Ives would not have been born in 1621. So I feel more comfortable with with 1607 date reported at several sites. There is no birth record so this is still speculation.

William arrived in the Boston area by himself in 1635 at age 28, on ship Truelove two years before Davenport and the main party of New Haven settlers came to Boston on the Hector.

He first lived in Watertown. MA (it could be in what is now Cambridge, MA). On March 30, 1638 he left Boston to help found a new colony on Long Island Sound. This party became the founders of New Haven on April 15, 1638. In June 4, 1639 they established the first civil government and William Ives is listed in the original New Haven Civil Compact as one of 63 signers of “Fundamental Agreement of Quinnipiac” (now New Haven).

William Ives was allotted a total of 18 acres in several parcels. His house was at 72-160 Congress Street (at the corner with what is now Hill Street) and his occupation is listed as farmer. In 1638 his estate was valued at 25 pds. and grew to 98 pds. at the time of his death in 1648. His immediate neighbor was George Smith. The map dated 1641 by Brockett shows the nine square that were laid out and the sections of William Ives and others.

William Ives married shortly after arriving in New Haven but the identity of his wife is not clear. The Early List of Estates published by the New Haven Church in 1640 lists William Ives with two people in his household with an estate valued at 25 pds. The second person is most likely his wife. Many claim that she was Hannah Dickerman but I feel that there is more evidence against this claim than supporting it as I outlined in a series of posts (see Who was William Ives' Wife?).. William Ives was admitted as a member of the General Court in Dec, 25, 1641 and received the charge of freeman, along with Mr. Malbon. Ives (1928, p.78) quotes that to be designated a “freeman” a man had to “be possessed of thirty pounds proper personal estate, and be of honest and peaceable conversation.” Candidates had to appear in open meeting and were sworn in if found qualified. They were then required to attend all open town meetings and they had to pay two shillings if they could not present an acceptable excuse for being absent.

In the first division of land in 1641, William received 6 ¼ acres in the first division, 1 ¼ acres in the neck, and 2 ¼ acres in the meadow with 9 acres in the second division. See this 1641 map of New Haven. His annual tax for this land was 4 shillings and 9 pence. He is listed in attendance in the general court of July 1, 1644. At the court of Feb. 24, 1644, he and Edward Banister are listed as "viewers for the suburbs" (the suburbs were near his lot - see map of 1641). William also served as a soldier in the Colonial Militia as a Capitan in the New Haven Indian Alarms from 1642 - 1646. In 1644 he was fined 6 pence, along with John Cooper, James Bishop and many others, for not keeping his military equipment up. He and his wife had designated seats in the "meeting house" in 1646. He had seat 69 and she had seat 149 as the men and women sat separately. Around 1646, he purchased 4 ¼ acres of upland from Mr. Rudderford lying on the further side of the West River abutting the west meadow. William and "Goodwife Ives" had five children:

1. Phebe was baptized in New Haven on October 2, 1642. Her first marriage was to Joseph Potter (1635-1669) on 1660. Joseph was the son of William Potter, one of the signers of the 1639 New Haven Covenant. They had at least four children; Joseph (1661), Rebecca (1663-), Phebe (1665-1738), Joseph (1667-1742), her second marriage was to John Rose (-1722) in August, 1670. They had at least five children: Deborah (1671-), Sarah (1673-), Hannah (1676*-), John (1679), Daniel (1782/3), all born in Branford, CT. Phebe died on 1682 in Branford. After Phebe died, John married Elizabeth Curtis (1654-1719), widow of Mercy Moss. John had also married Deborah Usher before Phebe and they had one child, Elizabeth (1668-1690). Phebe's mother, in her last recorded appearance before the New Haven court of August 5, 1662, apologized to the court for her "sin in meddling with that which did not concern her," the execution of William Potter, and breaking the fourth commandment. William Potter was the father of Joseph and father-in-law of her first daughter, Phebe, so this may have given her reason to feel connected to the event.

2. John was baptized in New Haven on December 29, 1644, and died in 1682 in Wallingford, CT. He married Hannah Merriam (1651-1703) on Nov. 12, 1668. They had five children: John (1669-1747), Hannah (1672-1715), Joseph (1674-1755), Nathaniel (1677-1711), Gideon (1680-1767). All were born in Wallingford, CT.

3. daughter still born 1645

4. Martha was born in New Haven about 1646 and married Azariah Beach (1646-1696) in New Haven around 1675. They had seven children: Mary (1676-), Richard (1677-), Thomas (1679-1755), Benjamin (1682-1710), Hannah (1685-1769), John (1689-1713), Martha (1690-).

5. Joseph was born in New Haven about 1647, and died in North Haven on November 17, 1694. He married Mary Yale on Jan. 2, 1672 and they had ten children: Joseph (1673-1751), Mary (1674-1675), Mary (1675-1712), Samuel (1677-1726), Martha (1678-1713), Lazarus (1680-1703), Thomas (1683-1767), Abigail (1685), John (1686-1690), Ebenezer (1692-1759).

William Ives died in New Haven in the late spring of 1648 some time after he signed his will on April 3, 1648. Richard Miles and Roger Allen witnessed his will on that date and they also appraised his estate on June 8, 1648 after his death and placed the amount at 98 pounds, 4 shillings. They provided an inventory of the estate on September 22nd. It included the following:

"his wearing cloathes; one bed furniture to it; one trundle bed with bed & bolster; two cheats; one box; 3 pars of sheets; 2 pars pillow covers; 6 napkins; one board cloath; Table; stools & charis; old brass pot; Iron pot; Iron kettle; 2 skillets; 1 bake pan; a mortar & pestile; 1 skimmer; 2 ladels; warming pan; pewter; 2 candle sticks; wooden ware; one hower glass; 1 gridiron; 1 pr of bellowes; 1 pot; hooks, pair of hangers; frying pan, fire shovel & tongs; cookes ware; Muskit & sword; Bondoleers & Sheaff; working tools etc; 2 wheels; 1 sheepe & yeuss. Ye house' home lot & all upland & meadow; 3 cowes, 2 oxen, 2 horses, 3 swine. Debts Matthew Molthrop owes to ye Estate."

His will was probated in court on Nov. 7, 1648, later in the same day his widow married Dr. William Bassett. Richard Miles and Roger Allen testified that William Ives "was in a state fit to make this will & did make it." In the will he designated his wife as the sole executor of his estate to be used to bring up his children until they came of age. When his oldest son. John, became twenty one he was to receive the house and land and when the other children became twenty they were to received one cow or the worth of a cow. In Feb. 6, 1649, William Bassett agreed in court to honor the will of William Ives. It is assumed he and his wife raised the four Ives children along the four they had together (see Bassett family). The family continued to live in the house of William Ives until it was sold in 1652 to the widow of Anthony Thompson. William Bassett placed eleven pounds worth of cattle as security for John Ives' portion of the property. William Ives' two sons, John and Joseph, went northward in 1670 and were among the original 39 signers of the Wallingford plantation agreement in 1668.

While it is probable that several persons by the name of Ives emigrated to colonial North America, our lineage in this country begins with William Ives (sometimes spelled W. Joes, W. Jues, Wm. Iues, Will Eues), who arrived in Boston harbor aboard the ship Truelove in late 1635. This was only 15 years after the Pilgrims had landed at Plymouth Rock.

Evidence exists that William stayed with a Miles Ives when he reached the New World until he could join the Davenport Colony.

In March 1637, he joined a party of Puritans led by the Reverend John Davenport who set out by water to find a suitable location for a new colony. They landed near the mouth of the Quinnipiac River on the north bank of what is now known as Long Island Sound, April 15, 1638. Here they established the plantation which was known as the Quinnipiac "New Haven" Colony.

Arthur Coon Ives' book, pg 15 - William is referred to as 'Captain.' This probably was his rank during his militia service in New Haven Colony during 'the Indian Alarms' of 1642 and 1646.

"Will Eues" was among the 63 signers of the covenant setting forth the rule of conduct for the new settlement, which was laid out in the form of a square one-half mile each way. In the center of the plot was a market place, now the New Haven Green, around which were 'house lotts' and farm land for each 'free planter.' A map date 1641 shows that William Ives was allotted 6.25 acres in the first division, 1.25 acres in the Neck, 2.25 acres of meadow, and 9 acres in the second division. His residence is believed to have been at '72-160 Congress Street and corner of Hill Street,' which would be only 2 blocks north of the Hill and Silver Street address where Warren Ives lived 200 years later. The location is still called the 'Ives Corner' as of 1995. Incidentally, both addresses are now onscured bu subsequent building and rerouting of streets. One source described the property as "His house & lott lying betwixt the house of George Smith and the highway...and two acrs of meddow...on this side of the river...the other end against the West river...all ofwhich did belong to the eldest son (John) of William Iues.'

William was a 'freeman of the Courte of New Haven' and is on the rolls of the church 1641-1647.

William's name and various information about him and his family appear in the records of his church - "Historical Catalog of the Members of the First Church of Christ (Center Church) in New Haven, CT, A.D. 1639-1914", compiled by Franklin Bowditch Dexter, New Haven, 1914 (at the New Haven Colony Historical Society, New Haven, CT). William was buried in the churchyard. The present building was erected in 1813 on the site of the old burial ground. The tombstones of the graves covered by the new building are still preserved in the crypt of the present church, the rest, removed in 1821, are arranged alphabetically along the wall of the Grove Street Cenetery, New Haven, CT. Positive identification of William's stone has never been made.

As indicated by the frequency with which his name appears in the early records, William apparently was quite active in the church and civil affairs of the New Haven Colony during the ten years he lived after its founding. From these records it appears that he married Hannah Dickerman in 1639, at the First Church of Christ, New Haven, CT. Hannah remarried, to Dr. William Bassett, on November 7, 1648.

The text below is copied verbatim from the bottom of page 26 of Arthur Coon Ives' book, 'Genealogy of The Ives Family', 1832.

"At a court held at Newhauen the 7th of November, 1648," the first Ives will in America "was presented;" it had been "witnessed and vunderwritten by Richard Milles and Rogger Allen, whoe now in court testify that the said William Ives was in a state fitt to make this will & did make it." "allso the inventorie, … amount 98(1):04:00d." "Wm Bassett whoe is near the marriage (they being contracted), of ye widdowe, was called to put in securitie to ye court for the estate, that the children of William Ives maye have their portions duly pd, … but he desired respite till ye next court...." Apparently it was not his purpose to "put in securitie" for the Ives estate until sure of marrying the Ives widow. And, indeed, they were "neare the marriage!" The wedding is recorded on the same day William Ives's will was probated.

The text below is copied verbatim from the top of page 27 in Arthur Coon Ives' book, Genealogy of the Ives Family", 1932.

Among the court records is the entry that "William Bassett...was complained of for the absenc at the generall trayning yesterday...because he had some haye wch, ...if he had not fetched it that day it would have bine eaten up & spoyled by many catle lying at it." But he kept faith with the court: Feb 6, 1648 (1649?). "William Bassett whoe hath married the widdow of Wm Ives...doth in court ingadge the whole estate which was left by him ye sd William Ives, & will not alter any of it..."

The will of William Ives was made 3 April 1648. The quote I posted was from the court record of 7 Nov 1648 where it was presented. The second part, about William Bassett is from a court record of 6 Feb 1648/49. The issue is also presented at an earlier court of 5 Dec 1648.

So, William died AFTER 3 Apr 1648, though I have seen this as his death date. Hannah was not married to William Bassett before 7 Nov 1648 but was married to him by Dec 5, 1648.

As to the children, I have never seen a primary source for most of the children. But the will indicates four children only, two boys and two girls, with John being the oldest. I too have seen 9 attributed to William, thoguh one of them was stillborn and probably his. John, Phebe and Martha are his, and the youngest boy is probably Joseph.

I don't know who the actual parents of the others are, it is just certain that William was not their father. More research into primary sources has to be done, not simply relying on secondary sources completely. (Even good ol' Coon Ives is a secondary source.)

I'm not sure how frequently Nancy C. checks this forum so will copy in a message I received from her regard to Martha.

Yes, William Ives and Hannah Dickerman had a second daughter. Her name was Martha, and she married Azariah Beach. In fact, one of the confirming sources for the maiden name of Hannah, her mother, is Beach Family Reunion records sent to me over the past few years. The Ives genealogist, Arthur Coon Ives, did not know that maiden name, and, in fact, didn't know Martha's name.

Martha was presumably with her husband, azariah, when he went to Elizabeth, NJ in 165, Newark in 1669, back to Wallingford Conn in 1673, then to Killingworth.

Timothy and Margaret Ives

Timothy IVES - b. about 1610, England. Came to American in 1638, taking up a grant of land of 100 acres at Deep Creek, near Portsmouth, VA. It is probable that he was abrother to Robert and JohnIVES of Accomack Co. VA. And there are some interesting associations that make it possible that he was a brother of William IVES of New Haven, CT. (Consider: the land grant to Timothy was recorded in New York State; the military service of William was recorded in Virginia).

Margaret -

Children of Timothy and Margaret Ives

1.John - married Eliza. Son: Luke married Eliza
2.2. Timothy - b. about 1640, probably near Portsmouth, VA; d. after 1716, Norfolk Co., VA
3.3. William - may have moved to NC

The question of William Ives' origin is so frustrating that I push it to the back of my mind and take to out to consider every year or so.

From my notes:

"Genealogical Gleanings in England," by Waters, indexes the surname Ives in a number of places, showing that the Ives, Hopkins and Yale families were in the same circle as the Davenport and Eaton adherents. Davenport and Eaton emigrated on the 'Hector,' the ship backed by the company from St. Stephen's parish in London. William Ives went from Boston to Quinnipiac Colony with that company.

This might enable us to put his feet on the ground in the geographic area of those religious leaders.

nancy I just e-mailed some information on the William Ives-Hannah Dickerman question separate from this posting. I have been looking into William Ives for some time. I came across the following on his oprigins and plan to check out the original source very soon. It places Wm Ives at St. Stephens in Coleman St which was new to me. I recently visited Coleman St and the St Margaret around the corner that took over the St Stephens parish in the 1950s. I have much more than can be posted if you want to discuss Wm Ives more. I would also be very interested in your response to the Hannah Dickerman issue. You have seen the information posted below by now.

The following is derived from "The New Haven Colony" by Isabell MacBeath Calder, published by Yale University Press in 1934: John Davenport has been elected vicar of St. Stephens but before he could begin his duties, he was charged with Puritanism by King James I, which he denied. In November of 1633, Davenport fled to Amsterdam to escape increasing disapproval of the Crown and this is where his group organized their move to the New World. The group included John and Elizabeth Davenport (left their infant son in the care of a noble lady), Theophilus Eaton, Anne Eaton, dau of George Lloyd, Bishop of Chester, and widow of Thomas Yale, the second wife of Theophilus Eaton, old Mrs. Eaton, his mother; Samuel and Nathaniel Eaton, his brothers; Mary Eaton, the dau of his first wife; Samuel, Theophilus and Hannah, the children of his second wife; Anne, David, and Thomas Yale, the children of Anne Eaton by her former marriage; Edward Hopkins, who on Sept 5, 1631 had married Anne Yale at St. Antholin's in London; and Richard Malbon, a kinsman of Theophilus Eaton. Also many inhabitabts of the parish of St. Stephen: Nathaniel Rowe (son of Own Rowe who inended to follow); William Andrews; Henry Browning; James Clark; Jasper Crane; Jeremy Dixon; Nicholas Elsey, Francis Hall, Robert Hill, WILLIAM IVES, Geo. Smith, George Ward, and Lawrence Ward.

Evidence exists that William stayed with a Miles Ives when he reached the New World until he could join the Davenport Colony.

In Reply to: Re: William Ives' origins - question of sources by Ken Ives of 1799

Ken - thanks for your reply. The statement about Miles Ives comes from the Arthur Ives book on the Ives Family - Ives, Arthur Coon, The Genealogy of the Ives Family, Hungerford-Holdbrook Company, Watertown, NY, 1932 - but Arthur does not provide the evidence and I should have mentioned this. We do know William Ives arrived in Boston in 1635 on his own and left in 1638 with the original New Haven founders. There is no record of his leaving Boston between 1635 and 1638 so he probably stayed in the area. While Arthur Ives mentions the possibility of Miles Ives as a place where he stayed, I have also seen evidence that would dispute this. I believe it was in: Cooke, H. Ruth, Times and Generations of the Driver Family, 1899. This book (if it was the source) said Miles Ives was one of the early Ives in New England but he came to Watertown in 1639, moved to Boston in 1641, settled in Cambridge in 1660 and died in Boston in 1684. This would place him there after William left for New Haven. Miles married Martha and had three daughters, Sarah, Mary, and Hannah. There was also a Thomas Ives in Salem, MA who arrived by 1668. He was born in England in 1648 and his descendants are described in Cook (1889). There is no confirmation of how Miles and Thomas might be related to William Ives. A son of Thomas, also called Thomas, was born in Salem in 1674 and settled in Marblehead, MA by 1710 where I live now. There are several descendants of Thomas Ives still living in the Salem and Marblehead area with the last name of Ives but I have determined I am not related to them. Sorry that I am not more precise but I have not really tracked Miles or Thomas since they are not related to William Ives, at least not in a known way. I am still looking at a different issue, the name of the wife of William Ives. Many sites claim it was Hannah Dickerman but I have found no real evidence to support this - any thoughts are appreciated.

Nancy - I have been digging around for a while and have found a number of sources on the net that indicate that William Ives came over on the True Love in 1635 and was the son of William Ives of Wilb, England, born 1585. William Jr. was born in Mears Ashby, near Wilby and sailed to Boston from the UK, eventually settling in New Haven. Subsequently, one of his off-spring married into the Yale family and became involved in the establishment of Yale University. If you have any other info on the Ives clan please share. Thanks.

Marriage: Hannah Dickerman (b. abt. 1621 in Little Missenden, Buckinghamshire, England), married 4 Jun 1639 in New Haven, New Haven, CT.

Children:

1.John Ives, b. 12 Dec 1644 in Meriden, New Haven, CT
2.Phebe Ives, b. before 2 Oct 1642 in New Haven, New Haven, CT
3.Martha Ives b. abt 1646 in New Haven, New Haven, CT
4.Joseph (Capt.) Ives b. 1647 in New Haven, New Haven, CY

William Ives (son of John Ives) was born September 09, 1607 in Ipswich, Suffolk, England and died April 03, 1648 in New Haven, Conn. He married Hannah Dickerman on June 14, 1639 in Wallingford, Conn., daughter of Thomas Dickerman and Elenor Whittington.

Ives Family in England - Prior to 1600:

The name Ives (Welsh) and Iver (Gaelic) means chief or leader. The name Ives (Danish) means zeal or fervor. The family name, Ives, in various spellings, is mentioned at different times in England but there is no certain link to the William Ives from Norfolk who sailed on the Truelove for Boston in 1635. Musch of this information prior to 1600 came from Ives (Ives, Arthur Coon, 1932, The Ives Family. The Hungerford-Holbrook Company, Watertown, NY) and Cook (1889)

The Saint Ives for whome the town in west Corwall is named was a churchman who became a Bishop and was also a lawyer. He was born in Brittany and became the patron Saint for lawyers. In eastern Cornwall there is the village of Saint Ive which contains a church named for Saint Ivo (1040-1116) the Bishop of Chartres. There is also an English borough named St. Ives in Huntingdonshire. Here in 970 Abbot Ednoth built a church on the burial site of Ivo, a Persian bishop who traveled though England preaching. One of William the Conquerer's followers from Normandy was Ivo de Taillebois (Ives the Woodcutter). Rogerus de Iverii was cup bearer to William the Conquerer. His son, Ivo, fell out of favor with the King, Henry I, and died on a pilgrimage to Jerusalem. In 1252 Henry III granted to Thomas Ives permission to enclose a portion of the highway adjoining his mansion at Kenteffetonne. The family of Ive were listed as og great antiquity in the Parish of Pancras, London.

Captain William Ives from Norfolk was listed in the Original Lists of Persons of Quality 1600-1700 as taking the oath of allegience and being accepted as a passenger on the Truelove that sailed for Boston in 1635. There are two candidates for William Ives' father - John Ives and William Ives - but no current conclusive evidence exists for either.

The Ives coat of arms listed in the Burdis Armory of England, Scotland and Wales refers to Ives of Bradwell County, Norfolk England. The Matthews American Armory and Blue Book states:

"The arms were used by the descendents of William Ives who came from London on the ship 'Truelove' in 1635, one of the founders of New Haven, Conn.; also of the descendents of Major Simon Willard, one of the founders of Concord, Mass.

Ives Family

...of Connecticut and New York

William Ives, Colonist (1607-1648)

Born about 1607 in England, died 1648, New Haven, Connecticut

Married Hannah (possibly Hannah Dickerman, daughter of Thomas D. Dickerman and Eleanor Whittington, p. 1622, d. 1665). Her second husband was William Bassett (m. Nov 7, 1648).

William Ives sailed from England in the ship "true Love" in 1635, landing in Boston. He is listed in the "Original Lists of Persons of Quality, 1600-1700" as "Wm. Joes," age 28, transported to New England on TrueLove, Sept. 1635. Genealogist Arthur Coon Ives has explained that early copyists frequently misspelled the name Ives, and that the letters 'v' and 'u' were used interchangeably. It is generally assumed that William came from the Norfolk, England family. He lived for a time near Watertoen, Massachusetts, and then joined the Davenport Company, a group of Puritans led by Rev. John Davenport and Theophilus Eaton. The left Boston harbor on March 30, 1638 in search of a location for a new colony, finally landing at what is now New Haven, where the Quinnipiac River meets the Sound. They held their first Sabbath observance under an oak tree at the harbor on April 15, 1638. "Will Eues" was among 63 planters of the group. A 1641 map apparently shows the 18.75 acres assigned to William Ives in the new colony. The group purchased the land for the colony from the Indians, and supposedly lived in peace with the Indians for quite a while. The census of the colony in 1639 indicates that William had married a "Hannah" by that time. In a church roll of 1641, William was listed as #69 and in 1646 Hannah was listed as #149. At a General Court held on March 10, 1646 to designates seats in the meetinghouse (men and women on separate sides), "Willm Ives" and "Sisted Iues" were listed. William died at New Haven in 1648, leaving a widow and four children. His widow remarried to William Bassett on November 7, 1648.

Phebe, bapt. Oct 2, 1642; m. 1) Joseph Potter; m. 2) John Rose

John, napt Dec 29, 1644; d. 1682; m. Hannah Merriman on Nov 12, 1668. She was daughter of Nathaniel and Joan (Lines) Merriman. Her second husband was Joseph Benham (Aug 17, 1682)

Daughter (Martha?)

Joseph, b. about 1648, d. Nov 17, 1694; m. Mary Yale on 2 Jan 1672

Children of William Ives and Hannah Dickerman are:

John Ives, b. 12 Dec 1644 in Meridan, New Haven, Connecticut; d. 1681/82 in North Haven, New Haven, CT; buried Center Street Cemetery, Wallingford. Married Hannah Merriman 12 Nov 1668 in New Haven, New Haven, CT.

Phebe Ives, b. 2 Oct 1642

Martha Ives, b. 1646 in New Haven, New Haven, CT. Died 1701 in New Haven, New Haven, CT. Married Azariah Beach 1676 in Wallingford, New Haven, Ct.

Captain Joseph Ives, b. 1647 in New Haven, CT. Died 17 Nov 1694 in North Haven, New Haven, CT. Married Mary Yale 3 Jan 1672.

Personal communication from James Harvey Ives --

CAPTAIN WILLIAM IVES (RN=951)

The first of the family in America was Capt. William Ives, who arrived in Boston harbor aboard the ship "Truelove" in 1635. It is generally assumed that he descended from the county Norfolk family, and that he was born in Northamptonshire, England, in 1607. However, some claim that he came from Yorkshire, and that he was descended from Guilbert Ives who crossed the channel from Normandy among the followers of William The Conqueror. By inference we can say that he became one of a select group of influential and well to-do Londoners in the establishment of a distinct colony.

William Ives' movements for the next three years are clouded. It is assumed that he made his home at or near Watertown, Mass., for it was here that he met men of wealth, education, and influence with whom his destiny was to become so closely linked. It is a matter of record that he joined the Davenport Company and departed from Boston harbor on March 30, 1638, in quest of a spot on which to found a new colony.

John Davenport was the Vicar of St. Stephen's, and he dissented from the Church of England. He was joined by Theophilus Eaten, a man of wealth, an able administrator, and a zealous Puritan, in organizing a company of parishioners from St. Stephen's and families from the counties of Kent and Hertfordshire for a move to New England. In Boston, they found repeated challenges to Puritan orthodoxy and decided to search for another area. Hearing of the "rich and goodly meadows of Quinnipiac," an advance party, led by Eaten, was sent to investigate. "Quin-Nippe-Ohke" (in the language of the aboriginal inhabitants) means long-water-place, and aptly describes the long sweep of the river before it discharges into Long Island Sound. What Eaten found here delighted him, and seven months to the day after Eaten and the advance party left Boston, Davenport and about 500 followers, including William Ives, set sail for Long Island Sound and the "new haven."

They arrived at the site on April 24, 1638. They hoped to create a Christian utopia on the banks of the Quinnipiac, and they also envisioned a commercial empire that would certainly control all of the Long Island Sound and possibly the coastline as far south as Delaware Bay. To New Haven came the wealthiest group of merchants to come to any New England settlement before 1660; they hardly intended to spend their lives raising Indian corn and peas. These men came to make the most of Quinnipiac's spacious harbor and favorable location.

Upon arriving at the site, these Puritans gathered for their first Sabbath observance. Next came a day of fasting and prayer as a preparation for entering into a solemn compact called a "plantation covenant". The planters agreed that in "matters which concern the gathering and ordering of a church," and in "public offices which concern civil honor," as well as in the "choice of magistrates and officers" and "all things of like nature," they would be guided by the "rules which the Scriptures held forth to them." For more than a year there were no other laws to guide conduct. Among the 63 planters who made this compact is the name "Will Eues." ("E" and "I1', as well as "U" and "V", were, in the old days, used interchangeably.)

April 15, 1638, the Rev. Davenport preached a sermon preparatory to signing the agreement of settlement on the site of an Indian village, purchased from the chief of the Quinnipiac tribe. The Company did not take a crown patent. The purchase price was paid to the Indians in the form of store supplies bartered in lieu of money; the savages had no money, their only currency was wampum. The terms included 12 coats of English tucking cloth, 12 achemy spoons, 12 hatchets, a dozen hoes, 2 dozen knives, 12 porringers and 4 cases of French knives and scissors.

The original settlement was organized around 11 squares, nine of these divided from a half-mile square; and two, called suburbs, which extended from the rectangle to the waterfront. At the center of the nine squares was the marketplace. Within these 11 squares were the home lots of those settlers, called proprietors, who had originally invested in the association. The extent of their lots depended upon their wealth and family size. A map bearing the date 1641 indicates the section assigned to William Ives.

About 1664, the Quinnipiac colony (New Haven) merged with the Colony of Connecticut.

William Ives married Hannah Dickerman about the time of the settlement of New Haven. They had four children, 2 daughters and 2 sons.

The Quinnipiac census of 1639 recorded Ives' family of two persons only; their first child was born in 1642. In 1641 the church roll recorded the name of William Ives as No. 69. Hannah was listed in 1646 as

No. 149. She had been busy. Their four children were as follows: Phoebe , baptized Oct . 2, 1642; John Ives, (RN = 9 2 3) baptized Dec. 29, 1644; Hannah, not stated; Joseph Ives, was born 16 April 1650.

William Ives did not long endure the hardships of pioneer life. He died early in the Spring of 1648, aged 41. The only record of his birth was stated in a history of New Haven as 1609, in or near London, the descendant of Jacob Ives who lived in the city about 1508. The exile was survived by his widow and four children. Hannah, left alone and with a farm on her hands, married Nov. 7, 1648, Dr. William Bassett, a neighbor and co-proprietor whose first wife was deceased before the death of Ives.

The Ives Will

The will of William Ives followed the English law of primogeniture, modified to leave his estate to his wife during her life in trust for the eldest son, John Ives, (RN=923) with reversion in the event of John's death before his majority to the younger son, Joseph Ives.

Dr. Bassett, on the day he married Hannah Ives, filed a bond with the court for the security of the estate. Hannah died in 1663. Dr. Bassett outlived his stepson.

Some More Information on William Ives in England

Richard Ives continues do some great work on the origins of our William Ives in England. We know for sure he boarded the True Love at age 28 to sail to the New World. There are various theories on what happen before then. Here is one post on it - New Clues on the Parents of William Ives (1607 - 1648).

Richard wrote me recently, “In a will made drawn up in 1628, Thomas Ives, a well to do inhabitant of Langham, Rutland, dispossessed his eldest son, Wiliam Ives, making a big deal of leaving him precisely one shilling in his will. To his other sons, Thomas left £15 a piece. This was seven years before "our" William Ives left England, but I think it is interesting to note that in 1628, the year William Ives of Rutland was dispossessed, "our" William was 21 years old - a fact that may have impelled to Thomas Ives of Rutland to make his intentions in regard to his estate clear. Are William Ives of Rutland and William Ives, Boston immigrant the same person?” He added in, "The Parish Map of 1624," you will find the Thomas Ives ("Iues") residence smack in the middle of Langham, the location of which can still be pinpointed in the town today see below.

Screen shot 2012-06-17 at 1.01.14 PM

In a second message Richard found the baptismal records of Langham Parish and he was able to locate William's baptismal record. He was born March 21, 1607, which would make him 28 years old in 1635, the age of our William Ives.

The then picture clouds a bit as Richard added in a third message - David Ives, an expert genealogist, discovered in the Langham Parish Burial Records a record of a "William Ives" being buried at Rutland on September 10, 1639. No age or family connection of the deceased is provided.

Although this certainly does complicate matters, David and I agree that, far from discarding the notion that William Ives of Rutland is "our" William Ives, we ought to continue looking into the case. There are several reasons why we have come to this conclusion.

The first is, simply, that as far as we know, after a century and a half of numerous American members of the Ives family examining original documents in England, William Ives of Rutland is (as far as we know) the first whose date of birth exactly matches the age given by "our" William Ives to the King's agent the day he boarded the "Truelove." It is, of course, entirely possible that there were two William Ives of the same age living in England at the time, but the fact that the date of birth of William Ives of Rutland perfectly matches that of "our" William remains powerfully suggestive.

The second is that if the "William Ives" who was buried in Langham on September 10, 1639, is the son of Thomas Ives of Langham, then a curious picture emerges. Born in 1607, William Ives of Rutland is disinherited at age 21, left with only a shilling in his father's will. Despite this, he either goes on living in Langham (or returns there later in life) and dies in the village in 1639 at age 32. For us, this scenario is little short of bizarre. It is nearly impossible to imagine a disinherited and shamed son continuing to live in Langham for 11 years after his stunning disinheritance. For one thing, with no property or money inherited from his father, how would he have made a living? As for the possibility of William leaving Langham and returning later, the idea that William, the prodigal son, left Langham after his disinheritance at age 21, only to return later and die at age 32 (death bed reconciliations notwithstanding), seems pretty unlikely as well.

Our conclusion is that the September, 1639, William Ives burial record for Langham may well refer to a child (baptized because he has a name) who was a nephew or cousin of the William Ives of Langham, born in 1607. The problematic bit of this theory, of course, is that there is no surviving baptismal record from Langham that we have been able to find so far for any such child.

Richard concluded - So, there you have it. Unfortunately, "our" William Ives still refuses to reveal his origins in a conclusive way and remains, as they say down South, "as slippery as an eel in a barrel of oil."

Thanks to Richard for this great work and I wanted to share it with you in this post.

Richard Ives just returned England where he was conducting more research for his book about his branch of the Ives family in America. He was kind to share his latest discoveries and conclusions. The text that follows is by Richard with only a few minor edits. After a careful examination of the evidence that has recently come to light about the William Ives who was baptized in Langham, Rutland County, England on March 21, 1607, Richard has become convinced that he and our ancestor, William Ives, who arrived in Boston in 1635, are the same person. The evidence to support this view is, admittedly, scanty but extremely compelling.

The first bit of evidence resides in the fact that on the day Will Ives, the immigrant to Boston, boarded the "Truelove" in England, he was asked to swear his allegiance to King Charles - which he did. He was no doubt asked other questions by the ever-suspicious Royal customs and immigrations inspector, but the only answer the inspector was required to write down was William's age, which Will Ives gave as "28." This age accords perfectly with the date of birth of William Ives of Langham. To grasp the significance of this fact, one ought to ask just how men named William Ives were living in England in the early decades of the 17th century? We know of at least half a dozen and there may have been twice that many. How many of the William Ives men we know about were born in 1607? Answer? Only one.

The second bit of evidence is somewhat more tangential but nevertheless extremely telling. When William Ives of New Haven died in about May 1648, his wife (We will call her Hannah for the same of convenience) understood that in a matter of months she must find a husband (At her age, she would not have been allowed to live without a husband in New Haven.). Now, consider the fact that she might have found a man from anywhere in New England to marry, or she might have chosen an immigrant from any of the 10,000 towns and villages in England itself. Whom did she choose in the end? Dr. William Bassett, scion the Bassett clan of North Luffenham (pronounced "Luff-Num") a village located just 9 miles from Langham, where the only English William Ives we know of from that period who was born in 1607 was born and raised. What, then, are the chances then that William Ives of Rutland and William Ives of New Haven are not the same person?

For some time now, our cousin David Ives and Richard have been in contact with the Langham Village History Group, based in Will Ives' home village, which has produced a magnificent volume entitled The Life and Families of 17th Century Langham. In it there is a considerable amount of information in it that pertains to Will Ives' youth, his family, and his ancestors. Richard would urge any Ives person who is interested in knowing about the background of our ancestor, Will Ives, to purchase a copy. A careful examination of the book and of the website that the Langham History Group maintains on the internet will open vistas that Ives researchers have been seeking for hundreds of years. Richard believes the that the book may be purchased directly from the Langham History Group, which can be contacted at LVG@LanghaminRutland.org The Langham Village History Group Home Page can be accessed simply by entering the name at Google Search or any search engine.

Last month, Richard traveled to England and met with members of the Langham Village History Group. They could not have been more obliging and generous in their hospitality. He laid the evidence before them that indicates that Will Ives of Langham and Will Ives of New Haven were one in the same person, and they agreed that the evidence is extremely persuasive. Attached below are a few photos by Richard of the Church of St. Peter and St. Paul at Langham - the church where Will Ives was baptized in 1607. Also included is a photo of the font - original to the church, and dating from the 16th century of before - at which Will Ives was baptized.

Finally, Richard it is time to clear the air about a few details relating to Will Ives, both before he arrived in America, and after. Three years ago, he procured copies of the records of church membership for St. Stephen Coleman, London for the years 1630 to 1635 from the LDS genealogical center in Salt Lake City, Utah. Since 17th century English cannot be read by anyone not trained to read that script, he paid several experts to decipher the rolls. What they revealed was that Will Ives was never enrolled as a tithing member of St. Stephen Coleman during the period 1630-1635, nor is there a record of any person named Ives having been enrolled during that time. The legend, perpetrated by well-meaning scholar Isabel Calder that Will Ives was a member of Reverend Davenport's congregation is, simply, false. This is not meant to suggest that Will did not attend St. Stephen - he may have - only that the records indicate clearly that he was never a member.

There is a second bit of William Ives lore in need of correction. It is been stated in the past that on arriving at Boston in 1635, Will resided in Cambridge/Watertown Massachusetts, near Boston, presumably to be near or live with his supposed kinsman, Miles Ives. As far as I have been able to discover, there is not the slightest bit of evidence to support this claim. Because the Ives name is relatively rare, they were probably related, and in view of the fact that Boston and Cambridge were mere villages at the time, the two men probably did meet, but that is really all that can be said about it.

DNA signature of William Ives Now Available

I heard from David Ives that for the first time, the DNA signature of William Ives (1607-1648) has been made publicly available. It is the result of the Y chromosome testing of 4 male known direct descendants, none of whom are closely related, of William. This is not only the signature of William Ives; it also is the DNA signature of every one of the thousands of direct male descendants of William Ives. This document, "William Ives DNA Signature," can be downloaded from: http://ivescentral.com/genealogy/

Our thanks to John Wilder (Jothamw@aol.com) for being THE driving force behind the Ives progenitor DNA project. Anyone wishing to find out further information about this project should contact John directly (above); or may contact David at: davidives@ivescentral.com.

DNA tests from direct male descendants of any of the progenitors of the various Ives lineages, other than that of William (e.g., the lineages of Timothy, Franklin Alexander, Thomas, Eardley, etc.), are always actively being sought.

This is not meant to suggest that Will did not attend St. Stephen - he may have - only that the records indicate clearly that he was never a member.

There is a second bit of William Ives lore in need of correction. It is been stated in the past that on arriving at Boston in 1635, Will resided in Cambridge/Watertown Massachusetts, near Boston, presumably to be near or live with his supposed kinsman, Miles Ives. As far as I have been able to discover, there is not the slightest bit of evidence to support this claim. Because the Ives name is relatively rare, they were probably related, and in view of the fact that Boston and Cambridge were mere villages at the time, the two men probably did meet, but that is really all that can be said about it.

Some More Information on William Ives in England

Richard Ives continues do some great work on the origins of our William Ives in England. We know for sure he boarded the True Love at age 28 to sail to the New World. There are various theories on what happen before then. Here is one post on it - New Clues on the Parents of William Ives (1607 - 1648).

Richard wrote me recently, “In a will made drawn up in 1628, Thomas Ives, a well to do inhabitant of Langham, Rutland, dispossessed his eldest son, Wiliam Ives, making a big deal of leaving him precisely one shilling in his will. To his other sons, Thomas left £15 a piece. This was seven years before "our" William Ives left England, but I think it is interesting to note that in 1628, the year William Ives of Rutland was dispossessed, "our" William was 21 years old - a fact that may have impelled to Thomas Ives of Rutland to make his intentions in regard to his estate clear. Are William Ives of Rutland and William Ives, Boston immigrant the same person?” He added in, "The Parish Map of 1624," you will find the Thomas Ives ("Iues") residence smack in the middle of Langham, the location of which can still be pinpointed in the town today see below.

In a second message Richard found the baptismal records of Langham Parish and he was able to locate William's baptismal record. He was born March 21, 1607, which would make him 28 years old in 1635, the age of our William Ives.

The then picture clouds a bit as Richard added in a third message - David Ives, an expert genealogist, discovered in the Langham Parish Burial Records a record of a "William Ives" being buried at Rutland on September 10, 1639. No age or family connection of the deceased is provided.

Although this certainly does complicate matters, David and I agree that, far from discarding the notion that William Ives of Rutland is "our" William Ives, we ought to continue looking into the case. There are several reasons why we have come to this conclusion.

The first is, simply, that as far as we know, after a century and a half of numerous American members of the Ives family examining original documents in England, William Ives of Rutland is (as far as we know) the first whose date of birth exactly matches the age given by "our" William Ives to the King's agent the day he boarded the "Truelove." It is, of course, entirely possible that there were two William Ives of the same age living in England at the time, but the fact that the date of birth of William Ives of Rutland perfectly matches that of "our" William remains powerfully suggestive.

The second is that if the "William Ives" who was buried in Langham on September 10, 1639, is the son of Thomas Ives of Langham, then a curious picture emerges. Born in 1607, William Ives of Rutland is disinherited at age 21, left with only a shilling in his father's will. Despite this, he either goes on living in Langham (or returns there later in life) and dies in the village in 1639 at age 32. For us, this scenario is little short of bizarre. It is nearly impossible to imagine a disinherited and shamed son continuing to live in Langham for 11 years after his stunning disinheritance. For one thing, with no property or money inherited from his father, how would he have made a living? As for the possibility of William leaving Langham and returning later, the idea that William, the prodigal son, left Langham after his disinheritance at age 21, only to return later and die at age 32 (death bed reconciliations notwithstanding), seems pretty unlikely as well.

Our conclusion is that the September, 1639, William Ives burial record for Langham may well refer to a child (baptized because he has a name) who was a nephew or cousin of the William Ives of Langham, born in 1607. The problematic bit of this theory, of course, is that there is no surviving baptismal record from Langham that we have been able to find so far for any such child.

Richard concluded - So, there you have it. Unfortunately, "our" William Ives still refuses to reveal his origins in a conclusive way and remains, as they say down South, "as slippery as an eel in a barrel of oil."

Thanks to Richard for this great work and I wanted to share it with you in this post.

William Ives Signature’s on the Freemen of New Haven

Here is a recently taken photo of the original list of "The Freemen of New Haven," that Richard Ives was able to retrieve via a genealogical researcher intermediary from the Connecticut State Archives at Hartford just a few days ago. You will find Will Ives' name listed third from the bottom of the left column. There is a blow up posted below the larger image. If you click on the image it will expand.

Richard Ives has again provided a great service to the readers of this blog. See - Record of William Ives Departure to New England in 1635 for an earlier contribution. What follows is his comments to go with the picture only slightly edited by me. He was in New Haven over the holidays and after some serious consultation of old maps was able to pinpoint the precise location of William Ives's home lot, as it appears on the 1641 Brockett map, drawn the year before William and Goodwife Ives' first child, Phebe, was born. Although the site today is, part of the parking lot of a medical building, he found it interesting nevertheless.

(The photo was taken looking roughly due east.) William's lot was about 50 feet wide by 100 feet long and is pretty much contained by the area shown in the photograph. The hedge and chain link fence on the left side of the photo mark the northern boundary of his property. The snow piled up at the far end of the parking lot marks its eastern boundary. The southern boundary, parallel to the northern, was just about where the right side of the photo ends. The place where Richard was standing when he took the photo is just a few feet inside the western boundary of his house lot.

These days the area between the far end of the property, as seen in the photo, and the cubical white building in the distance is occupied by a busy highway, known as the "New Haven Connector." (You can't see any cars in the photo because the Connector, built in the 1960's on an old creek bed, is on a somewhat lower elevation than the parking lot.) In the 1630's the place now occupied by the Connector was West Creek, which flowed, left to right (roughly north to south) as seen in the photo.

By the time the creek reached the area below William's house it had widened into a salt marsh that extended to the Long Island Sound, which in those days was not more than two hundred yards off to the right (roughly south) as seen in the photo. From the eastern edge of his property (at the present-day far end of the parking lot in the photo) William would have been able to look out out over the marsh to the wooden bridge that in all likelihood he had helped to build across West Creek, probably in the summer of 1638.

Looking off to the right, he would have been able to see the Sound itself, a couple of hundred yards away. He would have had a splendid, unimpeded view of the rising sun.

William did not live in an area adjacent to the New Haven Green, site of the meeting house and market, but rather in the western "suburbs," along with thirteen other families, whose lots were lined up, side by side, on a gentle bluff, the higher reaches of which, somewhat to the west, would later come to be known as "Sodom Hill," and eventually just, "The Hill."

To reach the New Haven Green in those days, William walked along a path that led down into the marsh (in the direction of the cubicle white building in the photo) to the wooden bridge that was probably just wide enough for an oxcart to pass. Having crossed the bridge, he headed up the path to the top of the slope on the far side and headed east (just to the left of the wavy brownish parking lot in the photo) past other farms belonging to the settlement. The walk from his house to the Green on all but the snowiest days would have taken him fifteen to twenty minutes.

Directions- If you drive (or walk) to the junction of College Street and Congress Avenue in the area of New Haven just west of the Connector, then walk (roughly) east on Congress, you will come to Lafayette Street on the right. If you continue walking a few more steps, you will come to a place where Congress veers sharply right to connect with the "S. Frontage Road." (This little dog leg in the road is clearly visible on the Brockett map and later maps.)

At this point the northern portion of the medical building parking lot will be just ahead. A chain link fence, running along the right side of the Congress Street dog leg is the boundary of the parking lot of a rather imposing medical building. It also marks the boundary of William Ives' property in 1641.

If you visit the site, you will notice that the Long Island Sound is nowhere visible from anywhere on, or near the property. That is because over the last 350 years New Haven town has expanded into the old harbor, which means that the Sound, these days, is one half a mile to the south.

I really Richard's photo and comments. I have long wanted to go to New Haven and do exactly what he did. Now I will have his photo to further guide me.

Request for Contact with Direct Descendants of William Ives

Richard Ives who provided the wonderful pictures of the record of William Ives departure to New England is writing a book on the William Ives family in America. As part of his research he would like to contact direct William Ives descendants on the male line. I am eagerly looking forward to seeing his work. It is vital part of the story of our country that starts long before the American Revolution. Anyone interested in this project could contact Richard directly at lindstromives@yahoo.com.

Record of William Ives Departure to New England in 1635

Thanks to Richard Ives of Sag Harbor New York for the content for this post, both the text and the photos. It is really appreciated. Richard is the author of "Of Tigers and Men" (Doubleday 1997). He is currently working on a book about his branch of the Ives family in America.

What follows are Richard's words: Here are a few photos of the London port book from the 1630's that lists the passengers on the "Truelove." If you look carefully at the bottom of the left page in the righthand column, you will find "Wm. Ives" with his age, 28. This is not William's signature. As William was about to board the "Truelove" the Royal Inspector asked him to swear an oath to King Charles, which William promptly did. He then asked William his age, and William told him. The Inspector wrote William's name and age in the book and allowed William to board.

First here is the cover of the port book.

Herer is an enlargement of William's name.

Here is more context from Richard. Because writing of that period is so difficult and the Truelove passenger list is so hard to read, I thought I would translate a few things. First of all, the heading of the list (which appears at the middle of the page on which William's name is listed) reads: "xix, Sept. 1635" meaning September 19, 1635. The words just beneath the heading read: "Theis under written names are to be transported to New England imbarqued on the Truelove, Jo: Gibbs, Mr the men have taken the oathes of Alleg: and Suprem:" The "Mr" stands for "Master," meaning master of the ship, Joseph Gibbs. The "Alleg: and Suprem" mean oaths of allegiance and supremacy.

The first name in the left hand column of the passenger list is "Thomas Burchard - 40." The names of Burchard's family follow. As for William, whose name appears at the bottom of the right-hand column, the name listed just above his is that of little Joseph ("Jo") Preston, age 3. The names of five other Preston family members are listed above Joseph's. The Prestons must have boarded the Truelove just before William did. I suspect that all adult male passengers were asked to place their hand on the Bible as they swore allegiance to the Crown.

By the way, there are listings on the internet that say that William was on board the "Hector" with John Davenport in 1637. He was not. It turns out that well-meaning people have assumed that William was on board because of a misreading of a passage in Isabel Calder's New Haven history. Calder talks about the fact that William was a member of Davenport's London congregation and implies that William was on board the Hector with Davenport. She obviously believed that he was on board. The reason Calder made this mistake was, simply, that she was unaware of the Truelove passenger list and therefore unaware that William Ives was already in Boston in 1637.

(By the way, while I was at the National Archives, I inspected the port book that ought to have included the passenger list for the "Hector," the ship that brought Davenport, Eaton, et. al. to Boston. Regrettably, the book is terribly damaged. Many pages are incomplete, many seem to be missing altogether. It looks as though the book was water damaged at some point. So, we may never be able to inspect the "Hector" passenger list.)

On his arrival in Boston, William Ives may well have stayed with Puritan divine, John Cotton. Davenport and Cotton were friends. Davenport had hidden Cotton from Royal authorities in London before Cotton's departure for New England. William was a member of Davenport's London congregation. So the connection between Ives and Cotton is pretty straightforward. I suspect that William may have traveled to Boston as a kind of forerunner, or emissary, for Davenport and Eaton. At the very least, William probably remained in contact with Davenport and Eaton by letter until they departed from London on the Hector.

Here is the location of the archives where the book is kept.

Here is the sign in front of the building.

John Ives (1644-1682) and Hannah Merriman:

John was baptized Decenmber 29, 1944 in the New Haven colony. When he was about 23 (1667), the New Haven colonists voted to create a new village on the East River, and their request was granted by the "General Courte" at Hartford. On January 31, 1668, 39 colonists, including John and his brother Joseph Ives, signed a covenant to settle in the new village by "next May." The new village was Wallingford. John Ives and Hannah Merriman were married on November 12, 1668. Hannah was born May 16, 1651 in New Haven. They left Hew Haven and settled in Wallingford at "North Farms." John was a farmer. In the new village, each planter was required to help build the community. Decisions were made by a majority vote, with guidance from the Bible and Church. The first homes built were log cabins with thatched roofs, and later frame buildings of white oak. John died in about 1682 (age 38), leaving five children, the youngest of whom was only a baby. Hannah remarried to Joseph Benham in the same year.

JOHN IVES (RN=923) & Hanna (Merriman) (RN=924)

In 1670 New Haven was confronted with the ever recurring problem of a rapidly growing community--the disposition of its surplus population. Our forefathers in New England adopted the practice of grouping themselves in villages or plantations for mutual protection.

The "General Courte" at Hartford granted the "towne of New Haven libertie to make a village on ye East River provided they settle a village there within fewer years from May next." Thirty-nine persons entered into a "covenant" which provided that "we doe engage personally to settle upon ye place by May next." Among the signers of this agreement were the sons of William Ives, John and Joseph. Another signer was Nathaniel Merriman, whose daughter Hannah married John Ives.

The new colony was called Wallingford, taking its name from a town in England. The Old Colony Road, "the first highway laid out in the state," and chief artery between Hartford and New Haven, was little more than a trail. It followed, generally, the Quinnipiac River, but Wallingford was about a mile east of that stream. The village was laid out with a "Long Highway" extending north and south, and "Cross Highways" running east from the Colony Road. "House lots" were plotted within the village, around which were "Common Fields," "Wilderness," "Planting Field," "Burying Ground," and "Land laid out for purposes other than building or House Lots."

The method of allotting land in the old days was unique. The planters owned everything in common, and "cast lots" to determine the spot on which the various homes should be established.

Joseph Ives drew lot number 10, on the east side of the Long Highway. (Joseph remained in Wallingford for about three years, and then returned to the New Haven area and settled in North Haven, where his descendants remained for many years.) John Ives drew Lot number 12 on the west side of Long Highway, but he chose not to occupy his lot, and it was assigned to another.

Each planter was required to take an active part in building the community; each shared in the appreciation in land values. Always, they were striving to better living conditions by improving the quality of the "cattle and sheep." At first there were no fences, and the domestic animals ("beasts") frequently destroyed what had been planted. It was found necessary to appoint committees to determine "what Hoggs shall be yoked and ringed, and what hoggs have no need soe to be."

John Ives was married 11 Dec 1668 and chose to settle in an area north of Wallingford called North Farms, which later became the town of Meriden. In the development of Wallingford and its "parishes," the Ives family assumed a prominent part for more than a hundred years.

JOHN IVES (RN=923) & HANNA (MERRIMAN) RN=924 IVES

John Ives, eldest son and heir of William Ives, the pioneer, born 29 Dec 1644, married 11 Dec 1668, Hannah, daughter of Captain Nathaniel and Joan Merriman, a co-proprietor. Ives cleared a farm and built his home in North Haven, now a suburb of Meriden, CT. He was wealthy gauged by the standard of land values of that day. Joseph, the younger brother, also became independent. The two sons of the pioneer, and Samuel, son of Joseph Ives, became signers of the Wallingford Agreement to divide that original township. The three John's share of Wallingford was located in West Wallingford, later named Cheshire. He never lived in Wallingford; Joseph lived there only three years, then returned to his own farm in North Haven and remained there until his death. According to Davis' History of Meriden and Wallingford, John Ives, the ancestor of Lazarus Ives of Poestenkill, died in North Haven 1681-82 at the early age of 37. He left a widow and six small children. The total value of the estate of John Ives was recorded as 230 pounds, 8 shillings, pence, equivalent at the purchasing power of money before the World War to about $10,000. Part of the inventory is as follows:

The homestead, that is all the land within fences about 10 acres, the house, a new frame joining it and the barns, orchard and other appurtenances ; 8 acres of land in the plane upon lease; the rest of the accommodations in 1 and , 2 or 3 acres ; the rest of the accommodations in land; 13 acres of corn and flax on ye ground; 16 steers , 2 cows ; chaffing dishes , lamp, warming pan ; a gun , a cutlass, ammunition, pouch, powder horn bullets and moulds; flax, tow, thread, stockings; casks and other things; a great washing tub; sheep's wool clothe, calicos, Buttons and silks; clapboards; 1/3 of cart and wheels, with the hoops and boxes," Left alone as her mother-in-law had been, the widow remarried 17 Aug 1682, Joseph Benham of Wallingford.

Edward Preston for disorders in ye meeting on ye lords day; They were dismissed with a serious admonition & told that they should suspend ye punishment they thought of in hopes of amendment, but if ever they were took in like offense this would be remembered against them."

Joseph first settled in North Haven as one of the first settlers, building a house "on the road twenty rods north of the house erected at the corner by Issac Thorpe (Thrope, 1892)," but then went north and was a co-founder of Wallingford, CT in 1670, He had signed the Wallingford Agreement in 1668 (see following post). Joseph was granted lot 10 but sold his interest to Goodman Foote and returned to North Haven in 1673 after marrying Mary Yale in 1672 to be near her family (Thomas and Mary Yale) who had returned from England in 1660 to settle in North Haven.

Unlike Wallingford, North Haven was most likely settled gradually and remained a part of New Haven. Ives (1928, p. 76) notes that the minutes of the New Haven town meetings in 1650 indicated that there were "more in towne then can well subsist together," and there was a "neccessitie that some should remove." Until a meeting house was built in North Haven, people met at the house of Joseph and Mary Ives for Sabbath worship. Jospeh was captain of the first train-band in the place. He is listed as a Proprietor of New Haven, CT, in the Year 1685 (NEGHSR, vol. 1, pp. 157-8). Joseph died Nov 17, 1694 in North Haven at age 47 and he is buried there. Joseph and Mary had ten children, all born in North Haven.

1. Joseph, born on Oct. 17, 1673, and died on Nov. 1, 1751.He was the first clerk of the parish society in 1716 and, according to Thrope (1892) was re-elected for 20 years. During this time he was part of a movement, led by his brother-in-law Nathaniel Yale, to dismiss the minister, Mr. Wetmore, for views too close to the Church of England. Joseph was captain of the first military company in 1718. In 1730, Joseph was appointed, along with Jonathan Mansfield, to lay out a highway from the Country Road to the East River. He married Sarah Ball (1679-after 1722) on Jan. 7, 1700 and had 8 children: Sarah, John (1701), Joseph (1703), Alling (1705), Stephen (1708), Enoch (1711), Elisha (1715), Dan (1721-1776).

2. Mary, born on March 18, 1674/5. She died in infancy.

3. Mary, born on Mar.17, 1675, and died on April 14, 1712. She married John Gilbert (1668-1741) on Jan. 21, 1691, in New Haven. She died on Apr. 14, 1712 in New Haven and is buried in the City Burying Ground, "Grove Street Cemetery". They had 6 children: John (1692-1732), Sarah (1694-), Jonathan (1700-1758), Mary (1704-), Stephen (1708-1754), Miriam (1712-1799). After Mary died, John married Abigail Heaton, widow of Ebenezer Atwater on Nov. 27, 1712 and they had one child.

4. Samuel, born on Nov. 6, 1677, and died on Nov. 24, 1726. He married Ruth Atwater, on Jan 3, 1705. They had nine children: Mary (1708-after 1730), Lydia (1709-after 1750), Samuel (1711-1784), Ruth (1714-1781), Jonathan (1716-1792), Damaris (1718-1802), Phebe (1721-1725), David (1723-1753), John (1726-1812).

5. Martha, born on March 5, 1678, died Jan. 17, 1727, married Eleazer Stent (1680-) on Jan. 6, 1713 in Branford, CT. They had at least two children: Eleazer (1715-1772), Elizabeth (1717). Both born in Branford, CT.

6. Lazarus, born on Feb. 19, 1680, and died on Nov. 5, 1703. He had no children.

7. Thomas, born on Aug. 22, 1683, and died on May 5, 1767. He married Anne Thompson (1682-1751) on May 4, 1711 in New Haven. They had five children: Thomas (1712-1752), Anne (1717-1748), Rebecca (1719), Mehitabel (1720-1793), Elizabeth (1722-1791). All but Anne were born in New Haven and she was born in Waterbury, CT.

8. Abigail, born about 1685. She died in infancy.

9. John, born on Jan. 18, 1686/7. He died in 1690.

10. Ebenezer, born on April 6, 1692, and married Mary Atwater on Jan. 17, 1714. He died on July 7, 1759. Mary was a cousin of Ruth Atwater who married Samuel Ives. They had 10 children: Miriam (1722-1792), Mary (1717-1770), Abigail (1728-1773), Eunice (1732-1801), Lazarus (1715-1762), James (1718-1804), Abel (1723-1792), Ebenezer (1727-1759), Noah (1730-1800), Lydia (1733-1778). His sons, Lazarus and James, settled near Jonathan Ives in Hamden.

I will now stop and look at what was happening in New Haven during Joseph's time including the early histories of North Haven, Hampden, and Wallingford Connecticut before going on to Joseph's son, Samuel.

personal communication from Richard Ives (NY), 16 Feb 2011:

Over the last couple of weeks I have been working on the Theophilus Eaton/Ives connection myself. I think I can add just a detail or two to what you sent to me.

David Yale and his wife Anne had three children - David Yale (b.1614), Anne Yale (b.1615) and Thomas Yale (b.1616). As you point out, Thomas Yale married Mary in 1645 and produced a daughter, Mary Yale, who married Joseph Ives.

Meanwhile, the elder Mary's brother David Yale (b.1614) married Ursula and produced Elihu Yale. Thus, Joseph Ives was married to a cousin of Elihu Yale - the Yale after whom Yale University is named.

Elihu, who never lived in America after he left as a child, had an absolutely splendid life. He ran the East India Company in southern India and became fabulously wealthy. He was also slightly shady and was finally forced out of his position. On his return to London, he involved himself in collecting art (a Rembrandt, a Van Dyck, and lots of others.) He was eventually contacted by the East India representative in Connecticut - a Mr. Dummer - and was informed that a struggling little college in Connecticut needed an infusion of cash. Mr. Dummer told Elihu that if he was willing to come up with a significant sum, the college might be willing to name itself after him. So, Elihu did just that, and they named the place after him. Ironically, Mr. Dummer had also given money to the school and there was some discussion about naming the place after him. But, for some reason, it was decided not to call the place Dummer College!

"South of the Whiting farm was the large one belonging to the Ives family. The old house stood, in fact stands, in the dwelling of George B. Murdock. Buried in the depths of this modern house is the kernel or nucleus of the one built by John Ives at an early date. (some doubt about this, but the site is the same). ???? In the year 1723 he appears to have taken up his residence in the parish of Meriden. He died in 1738 and the house and east part of his farm passed into the possession of his son, Captain Bezaleel. He died in 1798, and his only child, Captain Samuel, then became the owner and at his death in 1803, it became the property of Ivah Curtis, who had married his daughter Hannah. Here was born Rev. Samuel Ives Curtis, whose son Rev. Samuel Ives Curtis, Jr.. lately deceased, was ….a great …scholar and prof. of theology. …The farm of John Ives was a large one, comprising several hundred acres and stretched down on both sides of the highway nearly to the town line or farm of Amos Camp. His son, John, in the division of his father´s estate, took the western part and probably built the house many will remember as the Othniel Ives place, a few hundred feet west of the dwelling of Mr. Murdock. It was erected very likely about the year 1745. It was bought many years ago by J. George Schwink and perhaps 10 years ago was burned to the ground. In it was born levi Ives, who was the father of Levi Silliman Ives, who became the Protestant Episcopal bishop of North Carolina. In the year 1852 he ..embraced the Roman Catholic faith. The Ives family has always been numerous and influential on meriden and the old records abound in frequent evidences of this fact.´´

The Ives logging Enterprises

The Pilgrims came to a wilderness inhabited only by wild beasts and savage Indian tribes. Most of the country was forest or swamp that was uncultivated and unproductive. Each settler had to erect his own home and clear his own land before he could plow, plant, grow or harvest crops for the sustenance of his family. They were not lumbermen or mechanics, and no markets existed for the sale of the most ordinary necessity of home life. Their dwellings were primitive log huts and their farms had to be worked in primitive methods. It is not any wonder that the Ives males died early, worn out by hardships. Now the sons turned their energies to the inherited trade of logging work and clearing farms lands as did Ives the Wood chopper of Normandy. As they grew in capital, the fever came to speculate in lumber operations and to purchase timber tracts for the expansion of lands fit for farming. The Ives males made their fortunes literally by the sweat of their brews.

Personal communication from Richard Ives, 14 Oct 2012 --

"the two Gideons, the elder of whom would later be captured at the Battle of New York, be taken captive the British, confined in one of the British hulk prisons in the waters around New York, or in one of the infamous "sugar houses," in the town, where subsequently he would contract smallpox, be released by the British and make his back Wallingford, only to succumb to the illness a month later. His son, my 4 great grandfather, took the small inheritance he received from his father, emigrated to the Mohawk Valley very shortly after his father's death, and was caught up the Battle of Oriskany - the bloodiest defeat suffered by the patriots during the war.

"Joseph Ives (son of Joseph Ives and Mary Yale)959, 960 was born October 17, 1673 in New Haven, CT, and died November 1, 1751960. He married Sarah Ball on January 7, 1699/00960.

Includes NotesNotes for Joseph Ives:
[ives.ftw]

This Joseph was active in organizing the North Haven Church and was elected "first clerk." Also he was a member of the building committee and was chosen "to dignifie the seats." When the first military company was formed in the parish in 1718 he was made a captain, probably because of his age -- he was then 45 years old. He did not see duty in the Revolutionary War, of course, since he died in 1751. Nevertheless, his name is listed on a rather imposing monument in the new North Haven cemetery. It apparently was erected by the family of his oldest son, Stephen. His grave in the Old North Haven Cemetery is marked with a traditionally carved brown stone headstone. He was married January 7, 1700 to Sarah Ball, daughter of Alling and Sarah Ball. They had eight children, only three of whom lived to maturity. They were Stephen, Enoch, and  DAN . We are the descendants of Dan.

his brother Joseph were listed among the families in North Haven were it was first recognized as a parish in 1715 (Thorpe, 1892) (see The Gradual Beginnings of North Haven and Hamden)

The first church in North Haven was started in 1716 and Samuel's older brother Joseph was named as the first clerk and member of the building committee and he was re-elected to the post of clerk for 20 years and recorded the parish meetings. (see North Haven First Meeting House). When the building was completed, Joseph was chosen to "dignife the seats." Samuel and David Yale were named as the first two deacons. Samuel was also named as the collector of the "ministerial rate" in 1717-18 (Thrope, 1892). He and Daniel Barnes were appointed by the North Haven parish meeting in 1718 to organize the first militia. Samuel was an Ensign in this first military company and his older brother, Joseph, was the Captain. Samuel died on Nov. 24, 1726 at age 49 in North Haven and was buried Nov. 25, 1726, in the Old Graveyard, North Haven, CT. Only 12 others had been buried there before him (Thorpe, 1892). "South of the Whiting farm was the large one belonging to the Ives family. The old house stood, in fact stands, in the dwelling of George B. Murdock. Buried in the depths of this modern house is the kernel or nucleus of the one built by John Ives at an early date. (some doubt about this, but the site is the same). ???? In the year 1723 he appears to have taken up his residence in the parish of Meriden. He died in 1738 and the house and east part of his farm passed into the possession of his son, Captain Bezaleel. He died in 1798, and his only child, Captain Samuel, then became the owner and at his death in 1803, it became the property of Ivah Curtis, who had married his daughter Hannah. Here was born Rev. Samuel Ives Curtis, whose son Rev. Samuel Ives Curtis, Jr.. lately deceased, was ….a great …scholar and prof. of theology. …The farm of John Ives was a large one, comprising several hundred acres and stretched down on both sides of the highway nearly to the town line or farm of Amos Camp. His son, John, in the division of his father´s estate, took the western part and probably built the house many will remember as the Othniel Ives place, a few hundred feet west of the dwelling of Mr. Murdock. It was erected very likely about the year 1745. It was bought many years ago by J. George Schwink and perhaps 10 years ago was burned to the ground. In it was born levi Ives, who was the father of Levi Silliman Ives, who became the Protestant Episcopal bishop of North Carolina. In the year 1852 he ..embraced the Roman Catholic faith. The Ives family has always been numerous and influential on meriden and the old records abound in frequent evidences of this fact.´´

"the two Gideons, the elder of whom would later be captured at the Battle of New York, be taken captive the British, confined in one of the British hulk prisons in the waters around New York, or in one of the infamous "sugar houses," in the town, where subsequently he would contract smallpox, be released by the British and make his back Wallingford, only to succumb to the illness a month later. His son, my 4 great grandfather, took the small inheritance he received from his father, emigrated to the Mohawk Valley very shortly after his father's death, and was caught up the Battle of Oriskany - the bloodiest defeat suffered by the patriots during the war.

"Dan Ives (son of Joseph Ives and Sarah Ball)837 was born January 3, 1720/21837, and died March 27, 1776837. He married (1) Mary Platt on WFT Est. 1738-1752837. He married (2) Mabel ? on WFT Est. 1740-1765837.

Includes NotesNotes for Dan Ives:
[ives.ftw]

Our information about Dan is skimpy. According to Connecticut genealogist, Donald J. Jacobus, he also was a captain in the army and, like his father, he did not live to serve in the Revolutionary War. He was married twice, first to Mary Platt who died in 1754 at the age of 27. She gave him two daughters, Mary who married Stephens Jacobs and Sarah who married Hezekiah Bassett. His second wife was Mabel (last name unknown) who died in 1826 at the age of 100. The gravestone of Capt. Dan Ives in the Old North Haven cemetery carries this verse:

Tho vile Im sown in kindred dust
Ive crowns and Bliss among the Just

Presumably he followed faithfully in the church footsteps of his father. The grave of Dan's first wife, Mary Platt, is nearby, but Mabel's grave has not been identified.

The children of Dan and Mabel were Lydia,  DANIEL , and Alling. We are the descendants of Daniel.

Captain Jonathan Ives (4) was the son of Samuel Ives (1677 - 1726). He was born on Mar. 14, 1716 in North Haven. He was christened on July 8, 1716 at the First Congregational Church in New Haven, CT. Jonathan settled in the Mount Carmel area of Hamden in 1735 and later built a house on Cheshire Road in what was known in time as Ivesville, opposite Ives Street (Hartley, 1959). (see The Gradual Beginnings of North Haven and Hamden) He married Thankful Cooper on Feb, 19, 1737. She was born on April 11, 1721 in New Haven. All four sons fought in Revolutionary War. Jonathan is listed on the master roll of the Congregational Church in North Haven in 1760 but when the church was completed in Hamden he played an active role and was one of the first readers of psalms.

Jonathan was also on the first Hamden school committee in 1758 along with Samuel Atwater and Waite Chatterton. He was made Captain of the Fifteenth Company of the colonial militia in May 1760 and was still in that role in 1764. Land was leased to him in 1761 for a military training ground in Hamden. He is listed in the 1790 US Census in Hamden, CT with one adult female in his household (certainly Thankful). The 1790 Census also showed that the Ives family continued a strong presence in New Haven County. There are a total of eight Ives males listed as heads of households in the 1790 US Census for Hamden, four male and two female heads of household in North Haven and one male head of household in New Haven town. Jonathan died Jan. 2, 1792 in Hamden, CT at age 76 and is buried at the Centerville Cemetery. Thankful Ives is listed in 1800 US Census in Hamden. CT, now living by herself. She died Feb. 19, 1808 in Hamden. They had eight children:

1. Jeremiah, born Nov. 19, 1738 in New Haven Co., died 1825 in W, Springfield, married Hannah Bassett June 7, 1768: they had six children: Abraham (1769-1855), Joseph (1771-1830, Hannah (1773-1831), Sarah (1775-1849), Rebecca (1777-), Abigail (1780-).

Additional information for Lazarus Ives:

Personal communication, Nancy Ives Knab --

"Amos Ives (b Mar 14, 1749/50), brother of Jonah, can be found listed on the payroll of Ebenezer Allen's company, on the same page with Elisha Ashley. Rolls of the soldiers in the revolutionary war, 1775 to 1783 By Vermont, Chauncey L. Knapp. http://books.google.com/books?id=tZ8-AAAAYAAJ&pg=PA44&dq=%22elisha+ashley%22+ives&lr=&cd=1#v=onepage&q=%22elisha%20ashley%22%20ives&f=false. There are several entries in the Milton, Chittenden, Vermont deed books for Amos Ives, but this might have been the Amos Ives (21 Jan 1778 - 06 Jan 1867) who was the child of John Ives and Sarah Henderson. There was an Amos Ives in Shrewsbury, Rutland, Vermont in 1800. There was an Amos Ives on the 1840 Census of Pensioners, New York, Northern District, pages 87-88 at http://herkimer.nygenweb.net/census/1840herkpensions.html, Amos Ives, 91.."

"South of the Whiting farm was the large one belonging to the Ives family. The old house stood, in fact stands, in the dwelling of George B. Murdock. Buried in the depths of this modern house is the kernel or nucleus of the one built by John Ives at an early date. (some doubt about this, but the site is the same). ???? In the year 1723 he appears to have taken up his residence in the parish of Meriden. He died in 1738 and the house and east part of his farm passed into the possession of his son, Captain Bezaleel. He died in 1798, and his only child, Captain Samuel, then became the owner and at his death in 1803, it became the property of Ivah Curtis, who had married his daughter Hannah. Here was born Rev. Samuel Ives Curtis, whose son Rev. Samuel Ives Curtis, Jr.. lately deceased, was ….a great …scholar and prof. of theology. …The farm of John Ives was a large one, comprising several hundred acres and stretched down on both sides of the highway nearly to the town line or farm of Amos Camp. His son, John, in the division of his father´s estate, took the western part and probably built the house many will remember as the Othniel Ives place, a few hundred feet west of the dwelling of Mr. Murdock. It was erected very likely about the year 1745. It was bought many years ago by J. George Schwink and perhaps 10 years ago was burned to the ground. In it was born levi Ives, who was the father of Levi Silliman Ives, who became the Protestant Episcopal bishop of North Carolina. In the year 1852 he ..embraced the Roman Catholic faith. The Ives family has always been numerous and influential on meriden and the old records abound in frequent evidences of this fact.´´

"NEW-YORK, March 31. [1781]

An authentic account of Captain IVES's encounter with the Whale Boats in the Sound.

Captain David IVES, an Associated Loyalist, with a party of 22 men, going in an unarmed Schooner, belonging to and commanded by Captain CHURCH from City-Island to Lloyd's Neck, in company with two other vessels, armed with swivels, were attacked by four whale-boats full of men from Stamford, which he engaged and beat off with musketry only, altho' the Rebels took the armed vessels and turned the swivels against Captain IVES's party.

In the midst of the firing two Rebels were seen to fall over board, and three others appeared to be disabled, and two of the boats which afterwards drifted on shore, were bespattered with blood, and shot through in several places, one of them having a dead man, four muskets, and several coats in it.

During the contest Captain CHURCH, who behaved with great bravery, was obliged to run his schooner on the Long Island shore, and the Rebels landing a party, the more effectually to annoy the Loyalists, were driven off by the militia, who readily turned out on the occasion.
The next morning another man was found on the shore, supposed to have been killed in this engagement.

The New-York Gazette and the Weekly Mercury, March 31st, 1781. "

Personal communication from Richard Ives, Sag Harbor, NY, 1 Augusy 2011 --
"David Ives was a close friend and associate of Ethan Allen (they grew up in adjacent towns.) David was in fact one of Allen's "Green Mountain Boys" and was present, along with Allen and Benedict Arnold, at the patriot capture of Fort Ticonderoga in May, 1775. This is ironic because David went over the Loyalists shortly thereafter, angered, I believe, at not receiving an officership when the "Green Mountain Boys" were restructured following the capture of Ticonderoga in '75.

Whether that rejection provided David's motivation to turn his coat or not, he was caught red-handed the following year in Connecticut, smuggling British dispatches, and was transported by Connecticut patriots to Fort Ticonderoga (!) where he was tried, found, guilty, and was sentenced to die by General "Mad" Anthony Wayne. David was spared execution when British General John Burgoyne "liberated" Ticonderoga in July, 1777. David was released, eventually made it to New York, where he became acquainted with ex-New Jersey Governor William Franklin (son of Ben) joined Franklin's "Associated Loyalists" and in time had his whale boat adventure on Long Island Sound."

"The service of remembrance was opened by Calvin Rose, post commander of VFWPost 3594, who then turned it over to Jim Ives, president of the Central Coast Chapter of the Sons of the American Revolution.

Ives said he was wearing a replica of the uniform worn by his ancestor, Lazarus Ives, who serves as a rifleman from New York during the earliest years of the American Revolution.

Immensely proud of his family's long tradition of military service, Ives said he remembers hearing about his great-grandfather who, during the early 1860s "was carried on a cart every day so he could prepare the meals for General (Ulysses) Grant as they traveled the backroads of this nation to bring the Civil War to a close. My dad was an air -raid warden for our neighborhood during WWII.'"

Personal communication, James Harvey Ives --
"Big Lazarus" Ives (RN=1027)

Movement Westward Rensselaerwyck New York

Rensselaerwyck was the Dutch title of the great estate of the Patroon, Stephen Van Rensselaer; he held it to his death in 1849. The original grant was by the States General of Holland. When James, Duke of York, obtained grant from Charles II, he sent a strong fleet of war ships to seize the New Netherlands and hold it. New York and New Jersey were Dutch in settlement; they were conquered, never settled by any of English blood until the Revolution. The grant included even Maine, then claimed by the French and the western part of Massachusetts, though held under an earlier charter granted to the Puritan commonwealth.

The Poestenkill Ives Tradition

Anderson's Landmarks of Rensselaer County, and Sylvestor's History of Rensselaer County, published more than half a century ago, agree in reciting the Ives Tradition of Five Explorers. Both claimed a settlement of the Ives pioneer in 1770; one held that the explorers were of Swedish origin. Neither supplied names or dates, nor circumstances of their family. None of the family know of any other than Connecticut ancestry, descendants of Puritan forefathers. Lazarus Ives (RN 949), his sons and grandsons were born in Meriden or its vicinity. That the brothers were lumbermen in New England before their New York adventures, was a matter of common knowledge. But Lazarus and Joshua Ives had reached the time of life when it is best to settle in more peaceable industrial activities. Lazarus was 55 years old when he leased his great stock farm in Poestenkill.

The Ives Tradition read that some years after the Revolution, five brothers named Ives landed at Vanderheyden's Ferry, the site of Troy. Disregarding New York City, or Lansingburgh, they struck off up the hills "seeking good timberland with running water, enough to run a saw mill." Two remained in Poestenkill; the other three, dissatisfied with the district, kept going east and north and never came back.

No prior arrival is known to the family. At that time there were few settlers or farmlands cleared or ready for cultivation, except along the river line. Most of Rensselaerwyck was virgin woodland with some rich meadows. The area of the present county of Rensselaer was a part of the great estate of the Patroon Stephen Van Rensselaer.

The Patroon welcomed settlers as tenant farmers, but would not sell any of the farms on his estate. He offered them for lease on easy terms of possession, subject only to ground rent, payable in agreed quantities of farm products averaging by weight about or less than ten per cent of the quantity produced. So long as a tenant paid his toll, he was sure of a farm home for his family, the leases stating no fixed period. It was a profitable work to the Patroon and his farmers. The tolls of products paid to the Patroon were shipped by him to Europe in his own packets. Tenants could sell in towns along the river up to 90 per cent of their produce.

But first, the land had to be denuded of its trees and brush, to interest the farmer looking for a new place. There was no way to get logs down to the Hudson River, to float them to New York or other ocean ports. That was the reason for dissatisfaction of the three explorers who went further than Poestenkill.

The Family of Lazarus (RN=1027) and Lydia (Gremes) (RN=1273) Ives

Lazarus Ives, (RN=1027) born in Meriden, CT, November 7, 1734, died in Poestenkill, 17 September 1812, aged 78. Lydia was eight years younger and survived him eleven years. Their marriage probably took place about 1755 to 1758 at Wallingford where the couple lived until their removal to Plymouth in Litchfield County. They had a home in Watertown in the same county where the mother and younger children remained until removed to the Poestenkill farm. Lazarus' monument in the Poestenkill cemetery is inscribed with the dates of his birth and death, and his age, 78 years, 1 month, and 21 days. Their recorded children, all of Connecticut registry.

Lazarus Ives (RN=1027) 2nd oldest son of Lazarus (RN=949), was a Connecticut lumberman, shrewd, thrifty, far sighted, and enterprising in his purposes of development of his fortunes for the benefit of his sons and their families. His experiences in his operations in lumbering enterprises, more than farm life, had arrived at a period when settlement in one location required a more peaceful life; he found his opportunity in Poestenkill, and he made his permanent home in that place for himself , his sons and their families. The swarm of Connecticut neighbors who followed him and eagerly took up the farms he cleared of dense woods, justified his foresight. He was called "Big Lazarus" because of his success in all his plans of expansion of local industries catering to the needs of a farming population, far from the state of his origin.

Ives' development of industries was facilitated by the efficient work of his sons and relatives as they came to Poestenkill. Most of them elected to remain near him until his death. Others made the place a halfway stop for a few years until the urge came to go further west. Lazarus , his brother Joshua and his older son Christopher began about 1790 the clearing work on the three farms of the pioneer. Christopher the older son of Lazarus as his heir needed no immediate home or farm other than the stock farm of 178 acres. That claimed his attention excluding all others created by the enterprises of the pioneer. Christopher had to divide his time in the attention to withdrawal of capital from Connecticut, the wearisome journeys to Poestenkill and the purchases and freight of supplies to the lumbermen. None of them had much time to visit their waiting families in the Nutmeg State.

The journey of the families of the pioneers to Poestenkill was a tedious and exhaustive form of travel by wagons from Connecticut, fully 160 miles or more. The alternative route was to the Hudson River and slow schooners to Albany. People of today have no conception of the difficulties in travel of that early period. The road to Springfield was fairly packed; not too difficult on the Mohawk Trail from Boston west to Albany, but subject to miring delays in stormy weather. The difficult part was beyond the trail where no roads existed. But the caravans arrived in time and settled in their new homes.

It required at least three years to clear up the area of the three farms of the two brothers and Christopher (RN=1215), the son of Lazarus (RN=1027). Houses had to be built and equipped, and farm products matured and harvested to furnish food before the pioneers journeyed to Connecticut to bring their families to Poestenkill. Further, there was necessary the collection of their business accounts, sale of the Meriden properties incidental to the change from Connecticut to a farm home in Poestenkill, both of Lazarus (RN=1027), Joshua (RN=1030), their sons and their families, and relatives, who came in the Hegira.

The elder sons and heirs of Connecticut family estates were charged with the care of brothers and sisters and became the guide as well as financial agent of the enterprises of the family. At least one of each generation is charged with that duty. Timothy Ives trained Christopher Ives, his nephew, to handle the details of marketing of lumber and other productions of his family.

The Ives Estate

The lease holding system, or what is called "tenant farming," is a relic of English laws permitting the ownership of great estates to remain unchanged in family lines. The tenant farmer was subject to the rule of his landlord and obliged to submit to exactions in politics or farm life, under penalty of ousting him and his family from their home. The abolition of this method by state laws after the American Revolution did not affect the leased lands in New York State until the death of their owners. While Stephen Van Rensselaer lived there was no division of his great estate and no trouble like that developed in the Anti-Rent movement of the 'Fi f t i es . But his farmers could sell or transfer their leased property and get back, at the least, their capital. Lazarus Ives took all worth while. In his age, having divested himself of titles to others he could trust, executed a deed transferring the stock farm and a small 25 acre plot next to Christopher's farm, to the latter. It was virtually a trust for the care of his widow during her lifetime and at her death to be delivered to the eldest son and presumptive heir, Lazarus or his issue.

The Ives families in Connecticut had owned their farms and title had descended to the elder son in each case by inheritance, or by will where not entailed. But leased farms in Poestenkill could not be assured to a son by will. Lazarus needed no will. He made his deeds in life and when death came, he had divested himself of property interests.

The Ives Acreage

Lazarus Ives (RN=1027) was reputed before his death to be the largest landowner in the old town of Sand Lake. His descendants to this day speak of him as "Big Lazarus." Anderson's Landmarks of Rensselaer County, stated that he was the owner of several hundred acres and a large stock farm, about a mile north of Poestenkill Millage, where he lived and died. The stock farm was his original farm cleared by the labor of his sons and the first direct lease taken of the Patroon's land. The other farms were purchased by him from time to time as offered for sale by their owners, restless men who wanted to go west. Ives speculated, investing and waiting for a new land at his price. There were so many of the farms unsold at his death that settlement of the estate was delayed many years. Moreover he had created lumbering and other forms of industry , owned by him but held under other names. Most of his farms were transferred during his last years to Christopher Ives the oldest son, who acted as the financial director of his father's interests and investments.

The story of the Connecticut Militia and Lieutenant Lazarus Ives (RN=1027) as found in the official records Washington DC.

SERVICE OF THE MILITIA

RECORD FOR 1776

The first call upon the State militia for active service in the Revolutionary War was made in the summer of 1776, when Washington was in need of a large force to meet the enemy's threatened attack upon New York. Connecticut already had eight Continental and nine State regiments in the field, but she responded at once to an urgent request from the Commander-in Chief to send down a portion of her militia. Two requisitions were issued. The first called out fourteen of the regiments lying east of the Connecticut River to serve from August until "the exigency should be over." Brig. Gen. Oliver Wolcott was specially appointed to their command.

The second was a call for nine of the regiments lying east of the River to serve from September with Brig. Gen. Gurdon Saltonstall in command. As these troops were hastily summoned, poorly armed and provided for, and generally undisciplined, effective service could not be expected of them. A few of the regiments were exposed to the first attack of the enemy on New York, Sept. 15, '76, and contributed to what is sometimes described as the "panic" at Rips' Bay. Better troops would have found it difficult to withstand the shock. The experience proved a valuable one to the militiamen who were to be called out again more than once during the war.

Later in the season, when the enemy sent their ships up the Hudson to interrupt the American communications, Washington again requested Gov. Trumbull to send troops to the North River. "I know your exertions already are great," he wrote, 15 Oct '76: 1 know you have a large number of men engaged in the service in this, and the Northern army; and nothing could have induced me to mention this matter to you were it not for the al arming and melancholy consequences which will result from the enemy's possessing themselves of these communications. The Governor thereupon issued a proclamation calling upon the militia and all able bodied within the State to equip themselves without loss of time and be ready to march upon the shortest notice as exigence night require. At the same time , 21 Oct, he wrote to Washington: Considering the services and suffering of our militia the past summer, the present sickness that prevails among them since their return from the army, and the necessity of their attention to Country business, to secure a sufficient supply of provisions for the ensuing year, it is judged that this is all that we can do, consistent with prudence, at present.

The rolls of the militia regiments are incomplete, those given in the following pages being copies of the originals in the Pension Bureau and Trumbull Papers.

The number of militia regiments at the opening of the war was twenty-two. This number was presently increased to twenty-eight regiments of Infantry and five of Light Horse, the former being divided into six brigades. All able bodied persons between the ages of sixteen and fifty (less certain exempts) were subject to enrollment and duty. What the exact number was at different periods of the war does not appear on official returns, but the average was about twenty-three thousand. In 1782 the Adjutant General reported the number at something less than twenty-one thousand. How they were organized and to what extent they rendered service is indicated in the following rolls.

BRIG.-GEN. OLIVER ERASTUS WOLCOTT'S BRIGADE.
At Peekskill, March-June, '77.

(As recruiting for the Continental "line" progressed slowly in the spring of '77, and the regiments from Connecticut were not ready to take to the field in March, Washington urged the Governor to send a body of Militia to serve for six weeks at Peekskill where Gen. McDougall was then posted with a few troops. Three regiments were accordingly ordered. They were composed of detachments from the militia regiments and placed under command of Brig. Gen. Oliver Erastus Wolcott Vice Gen. Wadsworth first appointed. The companies were placed on duty at various points White Plains, Crompond , Fishkill , Ft. Montgomery, & etc. The rolls in part are as follows:)

Brigadier- General: OLIVER ERASUTS WOLCOTT
Brigade-Major: ROGER HOOKER
Captain: JESSE CURTIS
Lieutenant: LAZARUS IVES (RN=1027)
Ensign: ISAAC MERIAMS

"Came from Wallingford, Conn., and settled in Wallingford, Vermont, shortly after 1773. He was a member of the Dorset convention of July 24, 1776; sheriff of Rutland County from 1781 to 1785 inclusive; and toen representative in 1779 and 1783. He kept a store and a tavern, the first that were opened in town. At the time of the invasion of Burgoyne, Mr. Ives, being well known as a patriot, was, with others of that class, in much danger; consulting, therefore, his own safety, more particularly that of his family, he concealed his goods and returned ofr a short time to Connecticut. About 1786-7, he removed to Wallingford, Conn. In 1794 he attended the session of the Grand Lodge of Connecticut, He received the first degree of Masonry in Vermont Lodge, Aug. 7th, 1782."

From: http://www.rutlandsheriff.net/history.php --

"Abraham Ives was the first sheriff of record in Rutland County, Vermont. He was born in Wallingford, VT in 1741 and settled his family in the Town of Wallingford of the "New Hampshire Grants" (Vermont) in the early 1770s. He was first elected Wallingford Town Representative in 1779, and again in 1783. His most important public office however, was as Rutland county Sheriff. He served four one year terms from 1781-1875, a job that required extensive paperwork and a good deal of travel over poor roads. In those years, Rutland County extended from the northern boundaries of Rupert, Dorset, and Peru to the Canadian border, containing at least ninety of the towns of present-day Vermont. All of these towns were chartered, either by New Hampshire or Vermont, but many were unorganized and sparsely settled. Part of Ives' responsibility was collecting the state property tax of 1783. Under the Debtor's Prison Law, many persons faced imprisonment because they could not meet their creditors' demands or pay their taxes. More property changed hands as a result of irregularities in Ives' transactions than ever before or since in Vermont's history. Ives and his agents had a reputation for being dishonest. Even after his term as sheriff ended in October of 1875, Ives found himself in a position so untenable that he fled to Wallingford, CT. The Debtor's Prison was abolished in 1833. "

From: Hardin's History of Herkimer County:

Amos Ives was a native of Wallingford, Conn., and came to Salisbury in the spring of 1795, settling about two miles north of Salisbury Corners, where he was a successful farmer. He died at the residence of his son at Salisbury Corners in March, 1841. He was the father of seven sons and one daughter. Truman Ives was his youngest son and was three years old when his father settled in Salisbury. He learned the trade of wool-carding and cloth-dressing and in 1818 established that business about half a mile north of Salisbury Corners, which he successfully carried on until 1860. He was also an extensive farmer and owned a large estate, which he transferred to his sons, John and James H., in 1860. Anson Ives was an elder brother of Truman, and the following interesting reminiscences were published by the Little Falls Journal and Courier in 1876, in a reference to him:

He was a son of Amos and Lucy Ives, and was born in Walling ford, Conn., March 19, 1785. He was the fifth of a family of eight children, Amos, Ambrose, Simeon, Lucy, Anson, Orren, Samuel and Truman, all of whom are now deceased except Truman, the youngest, who is in vigorous health at eighty-six. All lived to a ripe old age. This family of ten persons removed from their home in Connecticut to this county in May, 1795, coming the whole distance in a cart drawn by two oxen and one horse. The journey to Little Falls required fourteen days. From this place to Salisbury was almost an unbroken wilderness, the route having to be followed by marked trees. They were one day in going two miles and put up for the night at a tavern kept by a man by the name of Doxtater, a short distance north of the present residence of Chauncey Cook. On the next day they reached Burrell's Corners and tarried over night in the small red house (still standing) just east of the old church which was burned fifteen or eighteen years ago. The day following they arrived at the happy home of Atwater Cook, the elder, grandfather of James J. Cook, esq., who admitted them to a share in his log cabin. Here they resided several months, until they could erect a log house of their own on a lot adjoining, purchased of Mr. Cook. They had all been neighbors and intimate friends in Connecticut. Anson while yet a boy left his father's house and went to Greene county, where he resided five years. From there he went to Onondaga county, N. Y., where he and two brothers contracted to chop eight hundred cords of wood. Here he was drafted into the United States service and stationed at Oswego, remaining there till peace was declared. For this service he received a land warrant for one hundred and sixty acres of land and a pension of $12 per month to the time of his decease.

It is from the Ives family that Ives Hollow takes its name, and there John and James H. Ives established several industries. They became very large land owners, engaged extensively in dairying, owned large interests in several cheese factories, carried on mills and also extended their business operations into other parts of the country. John Ives was twice supervisor of the town and James H. held the same office four terms and was sheriff of the county.

"Ken, I believe we gave a copy of the following to Joe Garcia, but don't recall sending it to you or posting it.We are fairly comfortable with the information and believe that all of this Amasa's children were by his first wife Bethiah.Mrs. Cape is a descendent of Jesse Roberts and Betsey Ives and has a lot of information on the Roberts family that we could provide if you are interested in filling in that line.(She has the original deed that created the Roberts family buring ground in Madison Co. NY)

on
A SEARCH FOR THE WIVES OF AMASA IVES
(Amasa(5) b.11/10/1747 per Wallingford CT. Vital Records V.13 P.543)
(Son of Stephen Ives and Sarah Hart)

SUMMARY

The record is unclear onthe wives of this Amasa(5).Our trip throughthe vital records and land records in NY. VT.MA. and CT. during April 1999 provides some information and may lead to further investigation.

We are now sure that this Amasa's wife was Bethiah as ofMarch 24, 1794, and his wife was Mary as of March 19, 1816.Also that his children,2boys and 8girls,were children of Bethiah.

SCOPE OF THE SEARCH

The search started in the land records in Mayville, County seat of Chautauqua County NYand included the library at Jamestown plus a trip to the Myrtle cemeteryin Poland township where Amasa(5) is buried.Additional search was made in Madison County land records at Wampsville and the library in Canastota, plus a trip to the Roberts family burying ground on Milestrip Road in Fenner township.

At Pittsfield MA,county seat of Berkshire County the land records were reviewed and extensive research was done at the library, which has the best local genealogical reference collection we found.In northern Berkshire county, the land records located in the town of Adams, and the Adams and North Adams vital recordsin the town clerk's office in North Adams were reviewed.Some local historical information was found at the library in North Adams.A side trip to check the land records at Bennington VT was unproductive.(The VT Ives families were located further north in the Tinmouth area.)

In Bristol CT.the Clock and Watch Museum has an extensive collection of Ives clocks and some by Gideon Roberts.The library in Bristol has a reference collection with some original documents and records of prior research, primarily concerningclock manufacturing by the Ives and Roberts families.Land records were reviewed in Bristol, Wallingford and Farmington.Vital records were also reviewed to some extent.They are not accessible directly unless you have a "Genealogist Card",although a few individual inquiries will be responded to.However, that is not a bar to access to the older records for two reasons.The Birth,Deathand Marriage records in CT prior to sometime in the 19th century were kept on blocks of pages interspersed at intervals in the land records.They can be usually be found by checking the Grantor/Grantee indexesunder "Births", etc..However the best source ofCT vital records for the era is the Barbour Collection at the State Library in Hartford.It is a compilation of the local vital records entries and is cross referenced with an extensive card index.(A cross check of Barbour entries versus local entries at Wallingford indicates that all of the information available at the local level is also included in the Barbour database.) The reference section in the State Library in Hartford contains an outstanding collection of genealogical resources, including acard index of newspaper, church, family-bible and probate records.There is also a very large collection of family history and historical books and records.

The final stop was at Forty Fort PA and the monument that memorializes the Wyoming Massacre of July 3, 1778.Elias Roberts died there and his son Amasa was one of the survivors.(Family historical information indicates that the "James Roberts" listed on the monument as a survivor is really Amasa Roberts, whose son Jesse married Betsey Ives at Madison Co. NY on 8 January, 1815.??)

SPECIFIC FINDINGS

The Barbour Collection and the vital records in Wallingford show that there were three Amasa's born to the Ives families in Wallingford in 1740 to 1750:

Amasa Ives, s. Jotham & Abigail,b. 2/7/1742?43Wall.VRv. 9,p. 554

Amasa Ives, s. Stephen & Sarah,b.11/10/1747Wall. VR v. 13.p. 543

Amasa Ives, s. Gideon and Eunice,b. 4/15/1748Wall. VRv. 9,p. 565

Two Amasa's were also married at Wallingford.

Amasa Ives Jr.m.Hulda Shailor 12/19/1771Wall. VRv. 19,p. 215
(Is he Jr. because he is the youngest of the two Amasa's born in 47/48???)

Amasa Ivesm.Rebeccah Ward12/13/1782Wall.VRv. 1,p.61

As will be indicated below,we also need to followAmasa(5)'s brother Stephen Ives.The records show:

Stephen Ives,s. of Stephen and Sarah,b.1/20/1739Wall. VRv. 13,p. 543

and:

Stephen Ives Jr.m.Susannah Parker Nov. 20, 1766Wall.VRv. 17p. 196

Following Amasa(5) andbrother Stephen, we find in the“Colonial Records and Proprietary Plans of Berkshire Northern District Registry of Deeds”(This is a copy of an early set of records that precedes the regular Berkshire County Land records and is located with them in the Clerks Office at Pittsfield MA.),the following entry on page 77:

ADAMS
Page 88AdamsJanuary 18, 1791.
Pursuant to a vote of Said Town of Adams 13 March 1786 we the subscribers being appointed a committee to lease out the Publick lands belonging to said Town have proceeded on the business Beg to report that we have attended that service and have leased out the publick lands to the following persons: viz:
....
To Stephan and Amasa Ives: the north half of second division lot No 45 containing 100 acres during the term of 999 years for the sum of 60 Pounds, 17 shillings and 6 Pence-----

We next look at the Berkshire County census records and find that:

1790	Amasa	Stephen
Free white males of 16 years and upward, including heads of families:	2	1
Free white males under 16 years	1	2
Free white females including heads of families	7	5

1800
Males under 10 years of age	0	0
Males between 10 and 16	0	1
Males between 16 and 26	1	0
Males between 26 and 45	0	1
Males over 45	1	1
Females under 10 years	2	0
Females between 10 and 16	2	1
Females between 16 and 26	2	1
Females between 26 and 45	0	0
Females over 45	1	1

Then inBook No. 1 of the First Series of North Adams Town Records we find the following marriages:

Page 47 7/1/1790George Hodge-Sarah Ives

The most significant document we found is in Book 3, Page 410 of the Land Records for the area located at the clerk's office in Adams, (About 15 miles South of North Adams.)

It is a deed from William Towner, Stephen Ives and Amasa Ives to Elisha Brown & Jeremiah Colegrove.It is signed:
Wm Towner*Seal
Stephen Ives* Seal
Amasa Ives*Seal
Mary Ives
Bethiah Ives

The deed is dated November 27, 1793.
It was signed, sealed and delivered in the presence of Joshua Knapp and Zena(Zera?) Ives on March 24, 1794.
It was recorded October 5-9th(?)A.D. 1794

Amasa(5) and Bethiah were husband and wife as of March 24, 1794.

[We believe that Stephen's 2d wife Maryis listed in the Rutland County Vermont Genealogical Gleanings transcribed and gathered by Elijah Ellsworth Brownell, Phil. PA, 1942 which shows that one of the Pensioners at Wallingford in Rutland County as of June 1, 1840 was:
Mary IvesAge 75,Residing with John Ives, (Head of the family of residence)]

On to Madison Co. NY.(Where Betsey Ives married Jesse Roberts on 8 June, 1815.)In the Madison county land records at Wampsville we find a deedin BookJ,at pages 430/431 dated March 19, 1816 between:

"Amasa Ives and Mary his wife of the town of SmithfieldCounty of Madison State of New York of the first part and Amasa Ives Jun'r ...of the second part."

This deed is signed by Amasa Ives and MaryX(Her Mark)Ives and was recorded on 6 June 1816.

In the 1810 census for Madison county we find:

A. Ives
Males 45 and up 1
Females 10 to 16 1 (This must be Betsey??)
Females 16 to 26 1
Females over 45 1 (Is this Bethiah or Mary??)

A. Ives Jr.
Males 10 to 16 1
Males 26 to 45 1
Females0 to 10 2
Females 26 to 45 1

In Mayville NY on June 22, 1835, the Holland Land Company sold the east half of lot No. 3 in Township No. Two in the Tenth Range toAmasa Ives(6?)This is the initial sale of this parcel after the acquisition and subdivision of the area by the Holland Land Company.(See Book 19, p.292)Subsequent deeds of property in this area are by Amasa(6) Ives and Betsey Ives.No deeds by Amasa(5) were found in the Chautauqua county land records at Mayville NY.

CONCLUSIONS

1. It seems clear that the juvenile members of the Amasa(5) family counted on the censuses of 1790 and 1800 had to be children of Bethiah, since she was still alive on March 24, 1794 when the deed listed above was signed.

2. We believe that Bethiah is Betsey's mother, since the deed was signed on March 24, 1794 and Betsey was born on July 16, 1795.It hardly seems likely that Bethiah would die or leave and Amasa(5) would remarry and have a child by Mary within 16 months???The 1810 census in NY indicates that Betsey is also the youngest and last child of Amasa(5)???

3. Some of the Ives females who were married at North Adams in the period from 1790 through 1806 should be children of Bethiah.If the children of Stephen from that group can be identified, then the remaining females married during that time are likely to be children of Bethiah.(Our review did not show that there were other Ives families of this generation in the North Adams area at that time???)

4. No records of the surnames of Bethiah or Mary werefound.Some sources indicate that they may have been sisters with a surname of Ames, Eames, Aems, etc..(We question whether they were sisters, since Bethiah was able to sign her name and Mary was not???)To our knowledge no marriage records of Amasa(5) have been located.

FURTHER INVESTIGATIONS THAT SHOULD BE MADE

1. Check the Death Notice for Amasa(6) published in the Mayville NY newspaper(Mayville Sentinel???) on 3 Feb. 1864DOD 25 Jan 1864.It may include some information about his parents?? This should be available on microfilm at the Patterson Library in Westfield NY.

2. Check the Tinmouth and Rutland County Vermont records and other sources for identities of the Stephen and Susannah/Mary Ives children so the Amasa and Bethiah Ives children who were married at North Adams can be tentatively identified.

3. Investigate the genealogy records of the husbands of the Ives females married about 1790 - 1806at North Adams to see whether any of those researchers have identified the parents of the Ives females.

4. Check with the Boston Genealogical Society which is purported to have extensive vital records for MA.This may lead to some marriage and birth records that would provide the surname of Bethiah and/or Mary.

5. Check the NY vital records at Albany to see whether there is any record of a death of Bethiah in NY and a marriage of Amasa(5) to Mary.

From September 1782 to November 1782 John transported wood from Connecticut to New York as a "teamster".

As of April 7, 1778 his enlistment papers read "transferred to Gen's Guard March 19". This was George Washington's personal body guard. You needed three things to be a member: be a native born citizen, be almost 6 feet tall and be of impeccable character.

Thus he enlisted for 3 years in this Guard. (this is shown in copies of his papers from National Archives)

A question remains - Why he is listed on the rolls of New Hartford, Connecticut. On November 7, 1791 Atwater Cook of Wallingford converyed a piece of land in Wallingford to John Ives 3rd for the price of 90 pounds. Yet, he died on April 6, 1814 in New Hartford. He is buried in the Center Street Cemetery in Wallingford

The first U.S. census of population taken in 1790 lists brothers Daniel and Alling as "heads of Families" in North Haven. They are recorded again in the 1800 census. Jacobus' genealogy of the Ives family shows Daniel (also called Dan) to have married Mary Baldwin (daughter of North Bradford farmer Aaron Baldwin and Sarah Frisbie) on December 31, 1783. He also shows them to have had five children,

 LEONARD , Melia, a son (name unknown), Roxana, and Esther. We are the descendants of Leonard.

The "Baldwin Geneology" published in 1907 confirms Mary Baldwin's marriage to Daniel Ives in 1783 and lists all of their children except the son that died in infancy.

The probable location of the Daniel Ives residence in North Haven has not been determined. However, his gravestone and that of an 8-year old daughter, Melia, have been found in the Old North Haven cemetery. His wife Mary remarried twice after Daniel's death in 1801. She died in Farmington, Conn. in 1837 at the age of 71.

Additional information for Levi Ives:

This story appears in "Genealogy, Conn. Vol. IV page 1778"

Dr. Levi Ives was born in New Haven on June 4, 1750 and died there on October 17, 1826. He was a physician and surgeon of rare qualifications and wide practice. He served in the Continental Army as a surgeon and was at Quebec with General Montgomery. He practiced in New Haven from 1773 until his death. During the Revolution he was in active service as a surgeon to forces in the field. He once bore a Lt.'s commission in the line during the campaign against General Burgoyne.

When the British made their comapign from Savin Rock to New Haven, he was one of the hardy guerilla volunteers that maintained the resistance to a slow advance of the enemy and was not only a surgeon but a sharpshooter as well. He married Lydia Auger."

"South of the Whiting farm was the large one belonging to the Ives family. The old house stood, in fact stands, in the dwelling of George B. Murdock. Buried in the depths of this modern house is the kernel or nucleus of the one built by John Ives at an early date. (some doubt about this, but the site is the same). ???? In the year 1723 he appears to have taken up his residence in the parish of Meriden. He died in 1738 and the house and east part of his farm passed into the possession of his son, Captain Bezaleel. He died in 1798, and his only child, Captain Samuel, then became the owner and at his death in 1803, it became the property of Ivah Curtis, who had married his daughter Hannah. Here was born Rev. Samuel Ives Curtis, whose son Rev. Samuel Ives Curtis, Jr.. lately deceased, was ….a great …scholar and prof. of theology. …The farm of John Ives was a large one, comprising several hundred acres and stretched down on both sides of the highway nearly to the town line or farm of Amos Camp. His son, John, in the division of his father´s estate, took the western part and probably built the house many will remember as the Othniel Ives place, a few hundred feet west of the dwelling of Mr. Murdock. It was erected very likely about the year 1745. It was bought many years ago by J. George Schwink and perhaps 10 years ago was burned to the ground. In it was born levi Ives, who was the father of Levi Silliman Ives, who became the Protestant Episcopal bishop of North Carolina. In the year 1852 he ..embraced the Roman Catholic faith. The Ives family has always been numerous and influential on meriden and the old records abound in frequent evidences of this fact.´´

"South of the Whiting farm was the large one belonging to the Ives family. The old house stood, in fact stands, in the dwelling of George B. Murdock. Buried in the depths of this modern house is the kernel or nucleus of the one built by John Ives at an early date. (some doubt about this, but the site is the same). ???? In the year 1723 he appears to have taken up his residence in the parish of Meriden. He died in 1738 and the house and east part of his farm passed into the possession of his son, Captain Bezaleel. He died in 1798, and his only child, Captain Samuel, then became the owner and at his death in 1803, it became the property of Ivah Curtis, who had married his daughter Hannah. Here was born Rev. Ives Curtis, whose son Rev. Samuel Ives Curtis, Jr.. lately deceased, was ….a great …scholar and prof. of theology. …The farm of John Ives was a large one, comprising several hundred acres and stretched down on both sides of the highway nearly to the town line or farm of Amos Camp. His son, John, in the division of his father´s estate, took the western part and probably built the house many will remember as the Othniel Ives place, a few hundred feet west of the dwelling of Mr. Murdock. It was erected very likely about the year 1745. It was bought many years ago by J. George Schwink and perhaps 10 years ago was burned to the ground. In it was born levi Ives, who was the father of Levi Silliman Ives, who became the Protestant Episcopal bishop of North Carolina. In the year 1852 he ..embraced the Roman Catholic faith. The Ives family has always been numerous and influential on meriden and the old records abound in frequent evidences of this fact.´´

His farm was bounded south on the Berry farm (to be described) and land of Dr. Isaac Hall, and east on the highway and not on Misery Bar road. He was a son of John and brother of Bezaleel Ives. Some of the farm was given him by his father and some he purchased of Benjamin, the son of Nathaniel Roys. East of this farm, on the other side of the road, just north of the Paddock homestead, once stood the house of Michael Mitchell, one of the early settlers of Meriden.

Miller avenue, which runs west from Misery road (now called Paddock avenue) and begins its course between the home of William B. "It was not until after the Revolution closed that this town was settled, and the eastern part a few years later than the western. Those settlers were mostly from the Hudson river counties and the eastern States, verifying the truth, that while the Germans and Dutch choose the low lands, the Yankee climbs upon the hills, and "pitches his tent." One of the early settlers of this locality, was a Mr. Brown, from Connecticut; who, while in his native town engaged in the manufacture of buttons. He as a shrewd business Yankee and turned his mind and hand to everything that had a tendency to gain money, and was called "Button Weaver Brown." In all local legal troubles he officiated as a pettifogger and business man, which gave to him a precedence in note, over other settlers. He died at an early day and left in his stead, a son Harvey, who engaged in the mercantile business and was for many years Justice of the Peace, beside being a Captain in the Militia service. Dexter Brown, of another family, built a log house and kept the first "tavern," in which all law suits were held for many years, beside giving "entertainment for man and beast" that strolled up the hills to replenish their stock of liquors. It must not be thought that those early settlers were content to delve daily among giant tree-stumps and stones without any other means of support, as they were too "Yankeefied." On the contrary, they engaged in other pursuits, such as making potash and whiskey. Who the first distiller was we are unable to learn, but Levi Ives did a large business in that branch as early as 1805. His customers were scattered over the country and drove the establishment to its utmost capacity, to meet their wants. An order from "Yankee Pete" Snyder was taken to Ives by his son, in 1812 for a "load of his best whiskey" at two shillings per gallon. "

From SueAnne Warr McClory, 8 Feb 2011 -- So Levi went up to the Catskills after the Rev. War and ran a distillery - I wanted to know and can't believe I found out. I haven't checked to see who Hiram Ives is, but possibly a brother. I found a reference to the Lake View Hotel (location of the graves) - it burned to the ground in the early 1900's and was rebuilt on the original site - the hotel is considered to be haunted and has been vacant in recent years. Also found a record where Levi was allowed to build a dam on his property.

Summit was settled after the Revolution. People who settled here were mainly from the Hudson river counties, and the “eastern States”. A man by the name of Levi Ives owned a distillery in Summit. This establishment was nationally famous, for many people from around the country ordered liquor from Ives.

Levi Ives, 8th Regiment Connecticut; Private

From SueAnne Warr McClory, 2 Jan 2016 --

The graves of Levi and Carolyn Pratt Ives in Summit, Schoharie, NY were located on private property. I received information from the town historian that the stones had been removed by the property owner and thrown into the nearby lake. If you look at the FindAGrave posts, you will see this information. I wrote to the local DAR chapter and not surprisingly, received no response. I cced it to the NY State Chairman and did received an answer but with no real interest. I thought they might like to try to do something about it - like place another stone, perhaps in the nearest cemetery - guess not. I think pursuing it further might require expense and I am not sure I want to go that direction.

"SIXTH GENERATiON -- JARED TOZER
Birth:Â 4 Apr 1764, Lyme, New London, CT
Death:Â 22 Nov 1850, Southesk, Northumberland, New Brunswick
In 1779, at age 15, Jared enlisted in Zebulon Butler's Connecticut regiment of the revolutionary army.
In 1784, Jared married Sarah Eunice Ives, b. Apr 4, 1764, daughter of Capt, David Ives. In 1789, Jared moved to the Miramichi region of New Brunswick.
Capt. Ives fought in the famed "Green Mountain Boys" and was part of the famed seige of Fort Ticonderoga, along with one or more Toziers. However, when ordered to burn his farm and crops ahead of the advance of Burgoyne's British force, Ives failed to burn the farm and subsequently was forced to sell the crops to the British army. As a result, Ives farm and property was confiscated after the war by the new American government, and he was forced into exile in British Canada. Jared Tozier may have followed the Ives family to New Brunswick. Jared returned to Connecticut at age 71 to claim his Revolutionary War pension.
As a note of historical irony, one of Capt. David Ives descendants, David Ives Tozier, either a son or grandson of our ancestor, Jared Tozier, served in the Maine cavalry and was mortally wounded at the battle of Five Forks, VA, during the Civil War. "

Additional information for Christopher Ives:
Personal communication, James Harvey Ives --
Christopher (RN=1215) and Mary (RN=1447)

Christopher Ives was the second son of Lazarus Ives (RN=1027), the Poestenkill pioneer and Lydia (Gremes) Ives, and succeeded to become the financial director of his father's several enterprises; the elder son and heir being fully required to handle the large stock farm. Christopher was about 48 years of age when the aged father deeded the stock farm to him as a shared obligation to provide for the support of the widow during her life and after her decease to deliver it to the elder brother, Lazarus, Jr. All the outside farms owned by the pioneer had been deeded to members of the family to hold or dispose of at the discretion of the manager; all of the enterprises had been safely placed in responsible management, under the supervision of the director. The stock farm of 140 acres , leased from the Patroon in August, 1792, was productive under management of twenty years work of Lazarus, Jr. The widow Ives lived in comfort , cared for by her children. Christopher continued his supervision and financial direction of the estate and the several industries more than thirty years. The records show no liens or mortgage liens upon any of the farms of the pioneer, nor of those sold by his sons.

None of the early named males were known to be interested in politics. There was plenty business ahead. The several supply enterprises had to be organized and made ready for dealing in supplies, materials and farms cultivated to market their products for farm equipment and the outfitting of incoming settlers. The great stock farm was a money-maker, both in animals and feed products. The sawmill was a busy place. A throng of newcomers needed lumber for houses, farm buildings, and the rude conveniences of home life in a new district. The farmers had to buy seeds, tools, farm implements and other necessities. This had been the purpose of the pioneer, to supply a certain demand, miles away from any large store. Thus, the youthful Christopher had been trained to become the executive of his father's purposes. As his fortunes grew, the elder Ives added to his cares investments in leased farms offered for sale by restless men who sought an easier or larger farm. There were plenty of newcomers ready to buy them until after the War of 1812.

Christopher, the manager of his own and the several industries, became the executive director, leaving his father free to seek investments. Lazarus Ives, brother of Christopher, the elder son carried the burden of the stock farm and daily interests.

Census Records

The Census of 1790, the first in American history, was limited in record to the names of heads of families, counting all males over 16, unmarried or married as heads of families. Males under 16 were counted as children, whether helpers or minor sons. Wives, daughters and women employed in a family were listed as females by sex, not by name. The Rensselaerwyck pioneers counted in that census were lumbermen, clearing the way to farms and homes. They had not then moved their families to Poestenkill. The leases of 1792 were not taken out until two years after the census. Thus, Lazarus, his son Lazarus, Joshua, John and Christopher Ives, named as heads of families, were obviously employers of boys and women employed by them, and counted as members of their families. The males under 16 credited to Lazarus Ives were not his children; his two sons were listed as heads of families.

Christopher (RN=1215) was born in 1764 at Wallingford, moved with the family as an infant to Plymouth. The date of his birth was about 1764. The date of his marriage was about 1786; his wife was named Mary. Educated and trained by his uncle Timothy in business ways, Christopher became the financier of his father's Poestenkill enterprises. To him fell the work of closing out the business and property affairs in Connecticut, the journeys to Poestenkill, and the provision of supplies and capital funds necessary to an adventure in a trackless frontier being opened through the lumbering industry of Lazarus, Joshua, and their sons. Christopher had his own independent property and family to provide for. His clearing was not advanced until the elders found time. The lease to Christopher of his farm was not obtained before Aug., 1792. In addition to his own farm work and from the general Hegira of the Ives groups to Poestenkill, Christopher became the director of all the investments of his father, whether in industrial enterprises or in farm lands and animal stock. To him fell the marketing of the produce, and other forms of merchandise available to the enterprises of Lazarus. He continued that management until his mother's death in 1823 when the settlement of the estate left by his father could be consummated by vesting the stock farm in the family of Lazarus Ives (RN=1027), the heir. Christopher survived the end of his trust only a few years. He died 9 Feb 1830, age 66. He was buried in the farm burial plot reserved by the pioneer as a resting place for his family. Little is known of his Mary. The Plymouth Church roll has a record of her membership dated 4 Sept. 1791, and a note: "her husband being then of New York." He was probably on a journey to Poestenkill.

The name of the eldest son and heir of Christopher Ives was developed for the first time in a century in a study of the will of the father recorded in the Surrogate's office in Troy , Rensselaer County, NY. The will named Ransom Ives as the inheritor of Christopher's estate and charged with the provision for the care of his mother during her lifetime, and the payment of legacies to the brothers, sisters or other persons named therein.

The church record in Plymouth, CT, names Mary Ives as a member four months after the birth of Abijah, her third son, on 14 May 1791. It noted on Sept 4 of that year that her husband was "Christopher Ives of New York." This record, plus the lease by her husband of the farm in Poestenkill in August, 1792, indicates that Mary Ives was at home in Connecticut when the Census of 1790 recorded Christopher as head of a family in Poestenkill. Their children were evidently too young to be helpers in lumbering work. Obviously Christopher himself was away from home on a journey to New York on his father's business. The removal of the fami ly probably took place in the spring or summer of 1793.

The record of the Census of 1790 showed Christopher as a head of a family and included in the family male and female helpers required in a lumber camp. Being the one charged with the liquidation of his own and his father's Connecticut affairs, possibly also Joshua Ives and absent on trips to Poestenkill or other places in New York or New Eng 1 and, reasonably explains the church record and the census also.

Further, the record of births of his children are confirmatory. The forth child in the family was baptized as late as 1792 in Plymouth, CT on 25 Aug. The father at that time was arranging with the Patroon for the lease of his farm. Mary or Polly Ives was the child carried in her mother's arms when the family moved to Poestenkill. The children named in the will were as follows:

Christopher's Last Will

Christopher's will was framed to follow the Ives' rule of inheritance in leaving the homestead to his eldest son, but he also followed the legal precaution of naming the children and the amounts of their legacies. He devised the home farm to his wife to assure her a proper support. At her death, the property was to become Ransom's, conditioned upon the payment by Ransom to his brothers and sisters of stated amounts in cash within five years. The will was filed for probate by Surrogate Philip Viele as of 13 Feb 1830 (Book 12, page 17). Citations came on 15 March 1830. The executors were Ellis Fester and Otis Could. The legacies were as follows:

To Abijah Ives upon the death of the widow, $200

To Sally (Ives) Clapper and Polly (Ives) Simmons, two years after the death of their mother, each $50.

To Jacob Ives, immediately $5.

To John Ives three years after Mary's death, $100.

To Truman Ives four years after his mother's decease, $200.

To Mehitabel (Ives) Stoddard five years after the death of their mother, and to Eunice (Ives) Searls, each $50.

It is notable that the Connecticut method was adhered to by the Poestenkill pioneers, differing only in the method of transfer required of leased farms of Lazarus and Christopher. Evidently the latter was benefitted by his experience with his father's tangled affairs. In the aggregate, the total of the legacies described, of $700, had indicated a purchasing power in the money of the United States of 1904 of almost $6,000 plus the homestead farm. Payments of legacies were to be made at periods separated to avoid undue burden upon the annual income of the property. They were not liens, nor a mortgage on the farm. But it was planned according to the reduced area. The original farm of 140 acres contained only 50 acres of farm land. The will was executed in the second year of the administration of Andrew Jacks on , before the passage of the Compromise Tariff Act, and in a period of inflation of property values. No sale of the property, nor record of the death of Ransom or his mother, has been found. Abijah, the next eldest son, did not take it over. He was independent, and in business cautioning that of his father-in-law, D. Rockenstyne, succeeded Christopher as the financial leader of the Poestenkill families.

Christopher's farm was originally reserved by the pioneer, Lazarus, as a family burial plot. Its location is not known today to his descendants or successors. But it was described as on a low hill about a mile north of the village of Poestenkill.

The first justices of the peace were Titus Ives and Godfrey Bowman

The first four settlers of Brookfield (Bedford George, Titus Ives, Elihu Hill, Curtis Cady) came about the year 1809

The George and Ives families were the only ones living in the east part of the township.

Mary, the wife of Titus Ives, once went to the calf pen, as she was wont to do; but, no calf being in the pen, she looked beyond the pen and saw in the brush fence the calf being carried away by a bear. She ran at once into the house, got gun, shot the bear and saved her calf.

Titus Ive's daughter Susannah went on horseback to De Puy's mill at Tioga, taking a second horse to put the grain upon, and made the trip successfully,

And so when Brookfield became a Township in 1827 the section down on the Troupstown Branch of the Cowanesque (Troups Creek) was occupied by the families of Schoonovers, Seeleys, Georges, Ives, Eddys and Dr. Bonney,

Titus Ives had opened a store at the State Line back in 1816,

The Pioneer Cemetery was first used as a burial place in 1805 when Ann George, wife of old Bedford George, was buried there, later Titus Ives and E. P. Eddy each donated ¼ acre to establish this cemetery.

Titus Ives and his wife Mary came here in 1808. Their children were Timothy, MRs. Sam Page, Susannah who married Joseph Lane later Harvey Seeley, Ambrose and Samuel who was killed by Bob Douglas.

"Wait Chatterton, Jr., went to Rutland and united with the West Rutland church in 1785, was chosen deacon in 1802 and held the office till his death in 1837. His eldest son, Exi, was also deacon in 1824, and then Exi's eldest son, Wait, till his death in 1865. The wife of the latter writes in December, 1895:.

'Of Susanna Dickerman Chatterton personally I can tell you very little. The most I remember is that I always saw her at church, and I was one of the choir that sang at her funeral, though I must have been a very young girl, for I am now almost eighty-five years old. But I know enough to say that she was one of the noblest women that ever lived. No woman could have raised such a family as she did without being noble in herseslf. Then she had a husband who might be called a saint on earth. He was in the war of 1812, was taken prisoner and sent to Halifax, where the treatment was such that all the prisoners but him and one other died. He was over ninety at his death and was deranged for six months. Physicians said there was a trouble in the head caused by wounds received in that way. Mrs. Chatterton was very retiring. one that looked well to the ways of her household; and I know the influence of the family still lives: her character is seen in her children and children's children.'".

"We are looking for the IVES family who came to Wolf Lake, IN. from Darke Co., Ohio about 1835-1839, There would have been Mr. Ives, his wife Mary (Polly) two sons Alexander (Allen) about 7, Oren a baby and then a daughter was born Johanna. It seems they just had the house built when Mr. Ives somehow fell of the little dock inot the lake and drowned. Mrs. Ives walked back to Covington, Ohio with her three children. if anyone can help out, we would really appreciate it."

"E-MAIL: FROM: Candi IVES, 9 Oct 2002: My great great grandfather Allen Ives, born 15 Feb 1828, Miami Co., Ohio, married Mary Deeter (Deiter) born 21 Mar 1831, Covington, Ohio. Allen's father, name unknown, was born Vermont. Allen's mother, name unknown, could be Mary but possibly referred to as Polly. Allen Ives was a Brethren preacher and had churches in Burr Oak, Kansas, and Washington. One article found in Burr Oak, KS, Church of the Brethren, stated that in "1871 Allen and Polly Ives settled on the present sit of Burr Oak". But Allen Ives was married to Mary, so Polly could not be his wife. Possibly his mother because Allen's father died when Allen was a young boy and Allen cared for his elderly mother. Some researcher believes that Allen possibly had a brother named Oren and a sister named Joanna. I have not been able to find the father and mother's names. Does any of this information ring a bell with you? Thanks, ---Candi Ives"

"Oren and Allen Ives were brothers whose family history begins with them; two little boys whose father died at an early age, leaving them to make their way in life in the American Frontier without his protection and guidance. For 40 years, I have searched for a record of their parents´ names with small results. What is known of their early lives came to me from a descendant of Allen Ives, Babe Erickson, from a record found in Bible of Charles Ives, a descendent of Allen Ives. The story is as follows:

Allen and Oren´s parents met and married in Vermont. ``Father´´ Ives was from born in Fisherman, Scotland and his wife, Mary (called Polly) was from Ireland. (My great grandmother, Oren Ives' daughter Maggie May, said her father was Dutch and English.) They settled in Darke County, Ohio where Allen was born on February 15, 1828. They had moved to Miami County, Ohio by 1835, where Oren was born. When Allen was seven years old and Oren was a baby, they went from Covington, Ohio to Wolf Lake, Indiana, presumably to establish a homestead. A third child, Johanna, was born there. They had just gotten the house built when ``Father´´ somehow fell off a little dock into the lake and drowned. Mary took her two little boys and baby daughter and walked back through country populated by wild animals to Covington, Ohio. This was a terrible situation for this young mother. She was a widow with three children and apparently had no relatives in the area as census records do not indicate that she was a part of any household, so she did what was necessary to survive. Allen was about eight years old by that time, and he was bound out as a servant for his keep to a man named Levi Deeter. He worked without pay until he was 18 years old. Miami County marriage records show that Alexander Ives married Mary Deeter (his employer´s daughter), on October 26, 1848.

According to the family story, Mary married a man named Frank Singer. Miami County marriage records show that ``Polly´´ Ives married Benedict Singer on July 1, 1839. The date fits, the last name is correct and one can assume that a man named Benedict might take the name of Frank in his everyday life. A listing in the 1860 Census for Wabash County, Indiana shows Benedict Singer (65) living with John Singer (41) and his family, wife Lidia (38) and son Aaron (5). Benedict Singer´s birthplace is listed as Pennsylvania and he was born in 1794. Many residents of Ohio migrated on to Indiana and Iowa in the mid 1800s so it is likely that this was Mary Ives´ second husband. A message listing on Genealogy.com by one of Allen Ives´ descendants states that Mary was divorced in 1840 after having at least one son by Benedict Singer. What happened to Mary after that I have been unable to discover."

"I am a descendant of Allen Ives, through David Ives. Other family members have Allen being born in Laporte Indiana or Lafayette, Indiana. I have looked at two separate censuses, one showing Ohio and the other Indiana, as his place of birth. I did some cross checking and discovered that a Chas. and Myron Ives arrived in LaPorte Indiana in 1831. Charles Ives was born in Ludlow twp, Vernmont 13 Jun 1793. His father was Levi Ives and mother Hulda Griswold. Levi was born in Wallingford Connecticut 16 Apr 1766. The information on Charles and his parents was found on FamilySearch. Allen apparently had a brother named Oren who was born in Ohio in about 1835. he also had a sister named Joanna. Allen's mother was named Mary. That is all I have been able to gather. I am just guessing at the connection of Charles to Allen. If we can discover that Charles' wife was named Mary, we may have something there."

"I, too descend from Allen Ives. I have the family Bible owned by his son Charles A. Ives, in which he states that his father's birth occurred in Lafayette (Tippecanoe County), Indiana. If you look at all of the available census records for Allen Ives, you see that his birthplace is sometimes listed as Indiana, and sometimes Ohio. I also have a narrative account Charles Ives made late in life in which he states that Allen and his siblings lost their (unnamed) father early in life when this family was homesteading in Wolf Lake (Noble County), Indiana. This would have been the early 1830's. It would seem a possibility that there could be a connection to the Asa Oren Ives, whose marriage took place in Tippecanoe County, IN, in 1827, to Polly Largent or Sargent. There were several other Ives families in Lafayette. A person named Asa Oren or A. O. Ives is found in Delaware County, IN in 1820, and Hamilton Co, IN in 1830. Not found in IN in 1840. According the the narrative, Allen's family returned to the Darke-Miami County, OH area after the loss of the father. Mother Mary (Polly) Ives married Benedict Singer, and was divorced in 1842. Sister Joanna married William Hausafus in Ohio, and was living apart from him at the time her estate was probated in Marshall Co, IA in 1889. Brother Oren served in the Civil War, was married at least twice, and died in Iowa in the late 1890's. Half-brother Benjamin Frankin Singer died in California in 1924 (mother not named in obit or death cert.), half-brother Francis Marion Singer died in 1905 in Randolph Co, IN. I have spent 22 years on this project on and off, and I know one thing: there are too many possible connections to chose one individual as Allen's father. For example: who is the John Ives, age 14, who in Darke County, OH in 1839 chose a guardian? Who is the Julia Ann Ives, age 14, who was buried in Darke County in 1844? Who is the Hoel Ives who died in Darke County at age 17 in 1848? Was Allen Ives part of a larger immediate family? Were these perhaps cousins, meaning an extended family had come to the area?"

Asa O. Ives...not always popular

For many years, I've been working to connect the dots between my Ives ancestors, working eastward from Washington state to Kansas, Nebraska, Iowa, and Ohio, toward Vermont and the well-documented New England Ives family. I have several pieces of documentation which suggest a connection to one of the individuals named Asa Oren Ives. I'm always gathering anything that would expand my knowledge of the family.

One piece that stands out is this item, which was published in The Rutland Herald, of Rutland, Vermont, on 20 February 1808:

We are left without any doubt about how David Palmer of Castleton, VT feels about this particular Asa O. Ives of Wallingford. Love how he "hints it to the public" by taking out an ad in the local paper. Could you do that today?

This quote comes to mind, whether this turns out to be "my" Asa or not: “You can choose your friends but you sho' can't choose your family, an' they're still kin to you no matter whether you acknowledge 'em or not, and it makes you look right silly when you don't.”

From The Ives, WIlson, Mighill and Collateral Families by Almeda Brenton Harpel

John Ives lived in or near Wallingford, Vermont until 1847 when with some he decided to bring his growing family to Iowa. He received his early education in the common schools in his native town and early engaged in Business. He went to Salisbury, Vermont where he had a store and also had an interest in a shovel factory. He returned to Wallingford and with his brother took charge of his father's farm and mill property and also built a hotel, which was kept as a Temperence House. Most of the time he managed it by himself. He was for many years Postmaster of Wallingford. On September 4, 1847 he with his wife and five sons and his brother Nathaniel removed to Iowa. On his leaving Wallingford many of the citizens and their wives accompanied them to West Rutland on their way to Whitehall N.Y. where they were to take the boat on the Canal for Buffalo N.Y. At West Rutland a farewell dinner was served to the whole party when they separated, part returning to their homes and part to make new homes in the far and then sparcely scattered West.

On their way from Whitehall to Buffalo, the youngest son, Robert, fell ill. Mr. Ives and his wife with the next younger son left the boat at Schnectedy to obtain medical aid for the sick boy. This proved however of no avail and on September 20, 1847 he died there. His body was embalmed and taken with them to their new home for burial. The brother Nathaniel with teh older nephews continued on the journey, expecting to be overtaken by the family but they were not united until after they all arrived in Iowa, and no tidings were received from either party while they were were separated, and the death of the little boy was not known until they met. The Uncle and sons went by steamer from Buffalo to Toledo, Ohio and while their boat was at Cleveland, the boat with the father and mother and other sons passed on their way to Detroit. The lake being so rough they did not try to land at Cleveland. They went on to Detroit where they took the cars to Ypsilanti, then the Michigan Central R.R. From Ypsilanti they went to Chicago by stage. From Chicago by hired conveyance to the home of a friend who kindly entertained them and took them forward on their journey. They reached the Mississippi River where they took steamer to Ft. Madison, Iowa and then drove 5(?) miles to the home of Mr. William Fox, a brother-in-law, where they remained until the other party arrived. Having been a month making the journey. The Uncle with the eldest sons left the steamer at Toledo and reshipped the household goods, carriages, wagons, and twelve fine sheep, on to a canal boat for Cincinnati. The boys accompanied the goods and the uncle went on before to arrange for another reshipment. He met them on their arrival and again loaded on the steamboat "Prairie Queen" which took them down the Ohio River to Cairo and up the Mississippi River to Keokuk, Iowa. Here the goods were again unloaded and stored in a warehouse. The Uncle hired a horse and rode thirty miles to the home orf Mr. Fox, three miles from West Point, where he found his brother and family. The next day the family were again united, glad to be again together, but with greaty sorrow for the loss of the little one.

This narrative will now be continued by the oldest son, Charles J. Ives.

"In the spring of 1847 my Grandfather, Eliakim Johnson, was furnished with funds to go from Vermont to Iowa to select and buy lands for a farm and home for my father and uncle. He purchased from the Government 960 acres of Prairie land for $1.25 per acre, lying in the corners of four townships, Mario, Cedar, Harrison and Franklin in Lee County and had a house partially finished when we arrived in October. The work of finishing the house was pushed along as fast as possible under great difficulties on account of obtaining carpenters and plasterers with their supplies and although we moved in very soon, winter was well advanced before the lower part was finished, the upper part being left until the following summer, although it was used to sleep in and many a morning the snow lay thick on the beds. The nearest neighbor was a mile away and only five houses was in sight. We all, however, felt the charm of a new country, and put up with the inconveniences, in anticipation of the improvements to follow. In the spring of 1848 improvements were commenced, land broken up and large barns erected. A great sorrow was soon to fall on us this summer. In the spring my mother had gone with my Gradfather to St. Louis to purchase supplies and while away took a sever cold, which rapidly developed into quick consumption, and on August 29, 1848 she died and was buried near the house with my brother Robert.

Additional improvements were made and more land bought and brought under cultivation, and crops good and bad raised. But progress was slow, with no markets. In 1852 we again suffered a loss by death. Uncle Nathaniel being taken with a congestive chill on Nov. 3. and died the same day and was buried with my mother and brother.

Additional information for Maria Ives:

Personal communication, Josh (Joshua Truman) Chilson, 6 March 2023, Facebook --

"Absolutely 8th cousin, David Ives. This is something I wrote several months back about my Ives Line matriarch Maria Ives Parker (daughter of patriot Ichabod Ives):

Maria Ives Parker (1801-1897). Pandemic family history research continues. This photo hangs on the wall of my home office.

This is my great-great-great grandmother Maria Ives Parker. She lived to the ripe old age of 96 (1801-1897). A proud member of the Daughters of the American Revolution, when she died in 1897 in Cheshire, New Haven, Connecticut, she was said to be the "Oldest True Daughter of the Revolution" in Connecticut. Her father (my great-great-great-great grandfather) Ichabod Ives (1759-1845) was a patriot of the American Revolution. At the age of 17, he volunteered from Wallingford, Connecticut in Captain Jacob Brackett's company, Wadsworth's brigade for the New York Campaign. He served under different companies until the end of the war.

Many branches of my Mom's family were early, early settlers in the New Haven, Connecticut area (going all the way back to when New Haven was a colony independent of Connecticut). Many like Ichabod Ives served our country in early military engagements including in the French and Indian War, the American Revolution, the War of 1812 and the Civil War. They lived primarily in New Haven proper, Wallingford, Meriden, and Cheshire but also in other communities in Connecticut and nearby Massachusetts and New Hampshire. Many were founders of their early colonial towns in the 1600s and 1700s and named in the communities' earliest charters and plats."

Children of James[6] and Maria (Ives) Parker:

i. LAURA[7] PARKER was born at Berlin, Hartford, Connecticut in 1825, and she died at Meriden in 1893.[4690]

From: Hardin's History of Herkimer County:

Amos Ives was a native of Wallingford, Conn., and came to Salisbury in the spring of 1795, settling about two miles north of Salisbury Corners, where he was a successful farmer. He died at the residence of his son at Salisbury Corners in March, 1841. He was the father of seven sons and one daughter. Truman Ives was his youngest son and was three years old when his father settled in Salisbury. He learned the trade of wool-carding and cloth-dressing and in 1818 established that business about half a mile north of Salisbury Corners, which he successfully carried on until 1860. He was also an extensive farmer and owned a large estate, which he transferred to his sons, John and James H., in 1860. Anson Ives was an elder brother of Truman, and the following interesting reminiscences were published by the Little Falls Journal and Courier in 1876, in a reference to him:

He was a son of Amos and Lucy Ives, and was born in Walling ford, Conn., March 19, 1785. He was the fifth of a family of eight children, Amos, Ambrose, Simeon, Lucy, Anson, Orren, Samuel and Truman, all of whom are now deceased except Truman, the youngest, who is in vigorous health at eighty-six. All lived to a ripe old age. This family of ten persons removed from their home in Connecticut to this county in May, 1795, coming the whole distance in a cart drawn by two oxen and one horse. The journey to Little Falls required fourteen days. From this place to Salisbury was almost an unbroken wilderness, the route having to be followed by marked trees. They were one day in going two miles and put up for the night at a tavern kept by a man by the name of Doxtater, a short distance north of the present residence of Chauncey Cook. On the next day they reached Burrell's Corners and tarried over night in the small red house (still standing) just east of the old church which was burned fifteen or eighteen years ago. The day following they arrived at the happy home of Atwater Cook, the elder, grandfather of James J. Cook, esq., who admitted them to a share in his log cabin. Here they resided several months, until they could erect a log house of their own on a lot adjoining, purchased of Mr. Cook. They had all been neighbors and intimate friends in Connecticut. Anson while yet a boy left his father's house and went to Greene county, where he resided five years. From there he went to Onondaga county, N. Y., where he and two brothers contracted to chop eight hundred cords of wood. Here he was drafted into the United States service and stationed at Oswego, remaining there till peace was declared. For this service he received a land warrant for one hundred and sixty acres of land and a pension of $12 per month to the time of his decease.

It is from the Ives family that Ives Hollow takes its name, and there John and James H. Ives established several industries. They became very large land owners, engaged extensively in dairying, owned large interests in several cheese factories, carried on mills and also extended their business operations into other parts of the country. John Ives was twice supervisor of the town and James H. held the same office four terms and was sheriff of the county.

"Leonard Ives (son of Daniel Ives and Mary Baldwin)967 was born January 5, 1785967, and died March 1, 1831967. He married (1) Mabel Stacey on August 7, 1806967. He married (2) Sarah Sackett on Abt. 1816967.

Includes NotesNotes for Leonard Ives:
[ives.ftw]

Very little geneological information on the Leonard Ives generation of our family has been compiled. Jacobus' records show Leonard's dates of birth & death along with his marriages to Mabel Stacey and Sarah Sackett. However, he listed no descendants. The Baldwin family history agrees with Jacobus' record of Leonard's marriage, first to Mabel Stacey and second to Sarah Sackett, but it states that they had at least two daughters.

Another genealogical record, "Sacketts of America," confirms Leonard's and Sarah's marriage and indicates that they had three children: Lydia, Warren, and Willis. Fortunately, we have the recollections of Aunt Sarah Clearman, recorded by Stella (Clearman) Swanson, and a few other documents upon which to base the following sketch of Leonard's family:

Leonard was 16 years old when his father (Daniel) died in 1801, and we can assume that the boy had little choice but to remain on the family farm and make a home for his mother and two young sisters. The 1810 census lists him as "head of family" in a household of 8 persons, one of whom may have been his widowed mother. The 1820 census lists Leonard's occupation as "agriculture." Thus far the precise location of this farm has not been found. But according to "North Haven Annals," it probably was in the then called Eighth District of North Haven, which "was at one time apparently the center of the Ives family, prominent in which were Captains Dan, Noah, and Thomas."

Like his father, Leonard died at a relatively early age, but only after having been married twice and having fathered eight children.

Children of Mabel Stacey....
Amelia.. Married Elan Porter on June 20, 1825. If this date is correct, she probably was born around 1807 and would have been the oldest child of this family.

Lydia....She is said to have married John Pearson and that they moved to Illinois some time prior to 1862. She could have been born about 1810.

George E...He was born about 1814 and is believed to have married Lydia Smith of Orange in 1838. He operated a livery stable in New Haven from about 1840 to 1855, after which the New Haven directory lists him as a farmer (probably in nearby Orange). He signed Warren's $500 surety bond to the G.H. Montague Mining and Trading Corporation, and looked after Maria's affairs while Warren was in California.

Children of Sarah Sackett...

Roxanna...She probably was born in about 1819, as she married David Wixan of New Haven on December 13, 1840. Their children were Isabelle, Hanford, and Adelaide. Stella Swanson has an old picture of "cousin Belle Wixan" who became Isabelle Burnham.

Eliza....Unmarried. She is buried in the Willis Ives plot in the new cemetery at North Haven. The tombstone shows her to have been born in 1821 and died in 1849.

 WARREN ....His obituary shows him to have been born Apr. 8, 1823 and to have died Oct. 23, 1919, age 96. We are the descendants of Warren.

Willis....Born 1825, died 1904. He married Delia Allen (or Alling) in 1850. She was born in 1830 and died only a few days after Willis' death. They had three daughters: Mary, who died in 1849, age 8: Fanny, who married a Wallace: and Cornelia (Nelly) who married a Willets. They had two children, Ruby and Fred (both dead now). Fred's widow, Mabel, lives near Cheshire, Connecticut. She has three sons.

Esther....She married Daniel Brockett. They had one daugher, named Adelaid.

Like Leonard, Sarah descended from a colonial ancestor, John Sackett, who came to New England in the winter of 1630-31 on the ship, Lyon. According to the book, Sacketts of America, he was strongly attracted to the Baptist minister, Roger Williams, whom he followed to the Plymouth settlement and afterwards to Rhode Island. From there he made his way to the New Haven settlement which William Ives had helped establish in 1637.

Also according to this genealogical record, Sarah's father, Eli, lived to the age of 83. And she was one of a family of nine all of whom lived relatively long lives for that day. Thus it would seem that the longevity which some of our family have inherited may come from the Sackett rather than the Ives side.

When Leonard died in 1831, Sarah was 47 years old with at least four young children still to be provided for. How she managed, we do not know. However, from the few facts we have, it appears that she did her best to keep her family together. Probate records (not yet researched) show that she had some property in North Haven when she died in 1864. Apparently she never remarried. She is buried in the Willis Ives plot in the new North Haven Cemetery.

"Henry Ives was a tailor residing on Seventh Street, near Main, Cincinnati.

He was inordinately fond of grapes; in the winter, spring, and early summer he would consume raisins by the box, but in late summer and during autumn he almost existed upon grapes. It is said of him that he did not use tobacco in any form, but that he made up for this virtue by using grapes. Adjoining his work-table was a window through which he was in the habit of throwing the seeds of the grapes, and one day in the spring he noticed a vine growing. It had just started when he saw it, but he at once left his work and inspected at close range this tiny infant. He carefully prepared the ground all around it and nursed it through the following summer, and whn winter came he protected it from the cold and frost. In a few years the vine bore fruit in such quantity that he was able to make some wine. Luckily the vine fell into experienced hands, and what mistakes Ives had made, through ignorance, were rectified the next year, with the result that the Ives Seedling is almost a standard grape in Ohio and vicinity."

"Ives' Madeira, Ives' Seedling, Kittredge

Ives has a high reputation as a grape for making red wine, being surpassed only by Norton for this purpose. The vine is hardy, healthy, vigorous and fruitful. The fruit is poor in quality, colors long before ripe, has a foxy odor, and the flesh is tough and pulpy. The bunches are compact, with well-formed, jet-black grapes, which make them attractive. The vine is easily propagated and is adapted to any good grape soil, but is so rampant in growth that it is difficult to manage. The variety is not widely cultivated. Ives was grown by Henry Ives from seed planted in 1840 in his garden in Cincinnati, Ohio.

Vine vigorous, hardy, healthy, productive. Canes long, thick, reddish-brown with thin bloom; nodes enlarged, flattened; internodes short; tendrils continuous, bifid or trifid. Leaves large; upper[Pg 394] surface dark green, dull, rugose; lower surface pale green, pubescent; lobes three to five when present with terminal one acute; petiolar sinus deep, narrow, sometimes closed and overlapping; basal sinus shallow; lateral sinus narrow; teeth shallow.

Fruit late mid-season, keeps well. Clusters large, tapering, frequently single-shouldered, compact, often with numerous abortive berries; pedicel slender with numerous small warts; brush short, slender, pale with a reddish-brown tinge. Berries oval, jet-black with heavy bloom, very persistent, firm; skin tough, adherent, wine-colored pigment, astringent; flesh pale green, translucent, juicy, fine-grained, tough, foxy; good. Seeds adherent, one to four, small, often abortive, broad, short, blunt, plump, brown. "
